Russ Offensive Storms Past Rogachev, Menaces Hun Strong Points

By International News Service
Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army improved its positions today on both the Anzio and Cassino fronts, after repulsing three attacks by reinforced German forces.

Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring hurled two thrusts against the Allied defense perimeter guarding the Anzio beachhead, south of Rome, and drove once against French positions near Mount Abate on the Cassino sector. All the enemy actions were described officially as "small" operations, and the anticipated third large-scale Nazi offensive below the Eternal City had not yet materialized.

On the Anzio front, the enemy thrusts were directed against British troops south and southwest of Carroceto. French artillery broke up the third attack on the southern battlefield.

The long dormant Eighth Army front, extending from the Adriatic sea inland toward the Cassino sector, flared into action when several clashes of British troops inflicted casualties on the enemy. The Britons also took prisoners. Operations around Cassino were hampered by a seven-inch covering of snow.

Rome Drome Founded

Twelve-engined medium bombers raided the Fabrica Di Roma air-drome, while fighters and fighter-bombers struck at roads, railways and troop concentrations in the battle area. The Allies, who yesterday blasted Steyr in Austria as well as the Fiume and Split ports on the Adriatic, were credited with destroying 49 enemy planes to but 21 American planes lost. The Steyr raid was but part of a massive two-day Yank assault on vital German aircraft factories. British based planes hammered Gotha and Schweinfurt plants and inflicted losses upon the Nazis which brought to 156 the number of enemy fighters destroyed in the dual operation.

This morning the Allies followed up a night in which the RAF attacked Schweinfurt, and the Nazis (Continued on Page Three)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—The Postoffice department revealed today that the army-navy campaign for the use of V-mail to cut down on volume has not been successful. Servicemen prefer the more personal airmail, even though they must pay for it.

Dems Back Rayburn As F. D.'s Mate

District Indorses Texan For Vice-Presidency; Delegates Appointed

Eleventh district Democrats went on record Friday as favoring the nomination of Speaker Sam Rayburn of the house of representatives for the vice-presidency, the action being taken at a district meeting held in Lancaster Thursday night. Rayburn is from Texas.

Walter L. Gordon, Lancaster, district central committeeman, presided at the session. He was also host at a dinner in the Hotel Lancaster.

The indorsement of Speaker Rayburn was voiced in a resolution.

The wording of the resolution, Mr. Gordon said, was: "Committeemen of the 11th Ohio congressional district recommend to the Ohio delegation their preference of the choice of Sam Rayburn for the vice-presidency."

The post is held now by Henry Wallace.

No mention was made concerning the possible fourth term candidacy of President Roosevelt. However, a letter of felicitation from the committee was written to the President.

The national convention will be July 19 in Chicago.

Mr. Gordon and Garrett Raypool of Chillicothe were appointed delegates to the national convention, with Hugh McTeague of New Lexington and Charles Alkire of Logan selected as alternates.

Wayne Armstrong of Hocking county was named presidential elector.

All of the five counties in the district, including Pickaway, Fairfield, Ross, Perry and Hocking, were represented. Mrs. A. Hulise Hays of Circleville, district committeewoman, represented this county. Neither Carl C. Leist nor Orren Updyke, chairmen of executive and central committees, respectively, was able to attend the meeting because of previous engagements.

While the committee has taken no action on choice of a candidate for congress to run against Dr. Walter Brehm of Logan, petitions were circulated at the meeting for Robert U. Hastings, Fairfield county prosecutor, who intends to make the race.

Mr. Hastings has not yet issued a formal campaign statement, although his petitions have been in circulation for some time.

GLEN GEIB TO TAKE POST ON FREMONT PAPER

Glen Geib, managing editor of The Circleville Herald since shortly after the merger of Circleville's two newspapers 17 years ago, will become editor of the Fremont News Messenger March 6. Mr. Geib, who came to Circleville from Dover in 1929, is widely and favorably known in the newspaper profession. His new position is an advancement and he carries to it capabilities and an energy that assure success.

Mr. Geib has been active in civic affairs all during his local residence, serving in various capacities in every organized undertaking aimed at county or municipal betterment. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, is past exalted ruler of the Elks, former president of Kiwanis and prominent as a vocalist. His departure will be felt in many circles.

Mrs. Geib, daughter Mary Ellen, and son Gene, will remain in Circleville until about April 1 when they will join Mr. Geib at Fremont. Another son, Frank, is serving with the United States Navy and now is stationed somewhere in the Pacific area.

A successor for Mr. Geib on The Herald has not yet been obtained.

PRESIDENT RESTING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—The White House announced today that President Roosevelt is away from Washington for a short rest, but that he is not ill.

DOUGHTON REVIEWS DISPUTED TAX

REPRESENTATIVE Robert L. Doughton (D.) of N. C., chairman of the House ways and means committee, reads a copy of the tax bill that was vetoed by President Roosevelt. Doughton, supporting Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, who broke with the president on the veto, charged the president's proposed tax program would be a crushing blow to both individuals and industry. (International)

Senate Ag Committee Demands Explanation On Farm Draft Order

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—The senate agricultural committee prepared today to demand from Selective Service Director Major Gen. Lewis B. Hershey a first hand report on recent directives doubling requirements for farm labor deferment.

The committee inquiry came as four major farm groups charged that the selective service action raising farm labor deferment from eight to 16 units would "demoralize agricultural production in 1944."

The protest was signed by the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange, the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives and the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation.

GRUBB BROTHERS GO TO ASHLAND, ATLANTA PRISONS

Two Grubb brothers, sentenced two weeks ago by Judge Mell G. Underwood to serve five years each and to pay a fine of $1,000 each for draft dodging, have been assigned to federal institutions in separate parts of the country.

John Wade Grubb, 29, has been assigned to the Atlanta, Ga., federal prison farm to serve his term. James Matthew Grubb, 22, has been shipped to the Ashland, Ky., federal correctional institution.

Both brothers have been held in Columbus city prison for the last month after being found guilty by a federal jury of failing to report for induction.

Both the Grubb youths claimed deferment because of their assertions that they were ministers ordained in the Jehovah's Witness faith.

A third brother, Daniel, is at Fort Knox, Ky., in army custody after refusing to report for training after being accepted for the army and being sworn into service. He has been home during the last 10 days on a furlough.

HATRED OF JAPS JUSTIFIED, SAYS NAVAL LEADER

CHICAGO, Feb. 25—Inhuman treatment of American war prisoners by their Japanese captors justifies a feeling of intense hatred against the Japanese people, Rear Admiral Arthur S. Carpender declared today.

Admiral Carpender, commandant of the 9th Naval District, said in an address before the Union League club in Chicago: "You now know of the atrocities committed by the Japanese against Americans who surrendered when they could accomplish nothing further by fighting."

"There should be instilled in the heart of every man, woman and child in America a deep, undying hatred of the Japanese; a determination that the Japanese must be treated as they deserve to be treated, and that the war must go on until they never again can raise their heads as equals among decent peoples."

YANK TRAINED CHINESE MOVE AHEAD IN BURMA

Superbly Equipped Troops Driving Japanese Out Of Hukawng Valley

CLEARING WAY FOR ROAD

U. S. Engineers Moving Up, Building Life Line To Embattled Country

WITH GEN. STILWELL'S CHINESE FORCES IN BURMA, Feb. 25—American-trained Chinese troops, jungle wise and superbly equipped, pushed forward in the disease-ridden Hukawng valley of northern Burma at a steady pace that indicated the entire valley may be retaken by the end of March.

Having succeeded in crossing the upper Chindwin river, Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's Chinese forces, together with elements of the U. S. Army, are advancing on Maingwan, 14 miles below.

Moving ahead as the Chinese clear the way of Japanese, U. S. engineers are hurrying work on the new Ledo road which eventually will cross the Himalayas into China to give Chiang Kai-shek's long-embattled country its first land lifeline since the Burma road fell to the Japanese.

The Chinese and American forces are supplied both by the road, and by U. S. aircraft which parachute food and other necessary supplies to the advancing troops.

There was no indication today whether the Japanese will make a major attempt to defend Maingwan, or to retreat to the lower Hukawng valley, which ends 38 miles below the river.

One of the dramatic events of this jungle campaign occurred during the river crossing, in the Taipa area, when the Chinese suspected that Japanese troops might still be occupying the dense, green jungle of the opposite shore. American troops accompanying them knew there was but one way (Continued on Page Three)

PEACE TERMS OF RUSS TO FINNS GIVEN TO ALLIES

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 25—Russia's peace terms to Finland have been disclosed to both the American and British governments, the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter said today.

(The Finnish radio yesterday quoted Finance Minister Vaino A. Tanner as saying that Finland "is disposed to withdraw from the war if she receives acceptable conditions.")

The Russian terms were said to include:

1. The re-establishment of the 1940 frontier, which would give Russia the Karelian isthmus. (The Finns have resisted this clause, declaring that 300,000 Finnish farmers have settled in that region.)
2. Demobilization of the Finnish army, when possible.
3. Damages to be discussed at some future date.
4. Internment of all German troops now in Finland, estimated at six or seven divisions.

The Russians were said to have told Finland that if aid is needed in controlling German troops, Soviet forces will be sent into the Scandinavian country, to be withdrawn when military operations cease.

(The Vichy radio quoted the newspaper Svenska Dagbladet as saying that Marshal Stalin had suggested to Prime Minister Churchill that they have another meeting in the near future, with Finland among the subjects to be discussed.)

Yank Airmen Describe Truk Raid and Reveal Battleships Hit Isle

(Editors Note: The first eye witness account of the mighty two-day air strike at Truk is given in the following interview with three navy fliers who participated in the raids. The pilots disclose for the first time that U. S. battleships shelled Truk and also reveal that the so-called Jap "Pearl Harbor" is little more than a large supply and staging base.)

BY JACK MAHON

Jap air opposition at Truk was so weak it was amateurish. And the supposedly impregnable Truk naval base was revealed to be little more than a large supply and staging base.

This was the amazing story put in the records today by three naval fliers who participated in the raid on the so-called Jap "Pearl Harbor." The fliers who told the amazing story are Lieut. Cmdrs. Donald B. Ingerslew, of Trenton, Mo., William G. Privette, Jr., of Chapel Hill, N. C., and Harry W. Harrison, Jr., of Miami Beach, Fla.

They participated in three strikes each against Truk's airstrips, a seaplane base and shipping in and around Moen, Eten and Dublon islands.

Cmdr. Harrison, the first speaker, said he could hardly believe his eyes at the lack of ability shown by Jap Zero pilots.

Although he has seen long service in the Pacific area, Harrison got his first Zero at Truk.

"Just east of Eten island after my squadron had strafed bombers on Moen airstrip, I spotted a Zero flying around slowly," he related.

"I was piloting a Hellcat and zoomed down on him, but he just sat there—fat, dumb and happy."

"He took it and fell into the ocean."

"Our group of 12 fighters got three Zeros and they all reported later similar tactics of the Japs who seemingly did not know what to do."

"We believe they were only ferry pilots, bringing Zeros up to Truk for later transfer to Rabaul. They certainly did not seem to be good fighters."

Commander Ingerslew, leader of a Dauntless dive bomber division, reported his group struck a large cargo ship and a large tanker on the first two strikes and spotted a couple of cruisers making for the north passage out of Truk.

"On the third strike, shortly after 1 p. m., our targets were the seaplane base at Dublon anchorage and cruisers trying to escape through the north passage," he said.

Hit Cargo Ships

"Our first division hit the seaplane base and the second struck the cargo ships in the anchorage. One boy spotted a huge ammunition ship off Dublon and went after it, scoring a direct hit. The terrific explosion scattered shells all over the sky."

"He went in at 700 feet and the concussion caused him to crash too."

Commander Privette, picking up the story, laughed as he recalled the seaplane base raid in which he also participated, flying a torpedo bomber.

"We played hide and seek in the clouds, laying small incendiaries and bombs on about 55 of them packed like sardines below us," he said.

"We were pretty certain we wrecked all of them for none was reported in the sky for the rest of the day."

"On the third strike we went hunting cruisers trying to run all over the ocean to the north passage. There were two of them and bombers went in on one, scoring hits all around, spraying much water into the sky."

JOHNSTON SAYS TAX SYSTEM IS PATTERN OF RUIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—The nation's present tax system is "a mosaic pattern of ruin," and must be changed to avert socialism, Eric A. Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, warned today.

Present tax laws, Johnston told a "World of Tomorrow" dinner, "thwart and stifle" opportunity, and he demanded that they be revised immediately to meet postwar needs.

He urged business and industry to begin work immediately on "realistic" plans for conversion into peace time production,

TAX BILL VETO VOTED DOWN BY 72 TO 14 COUNT

Vote Clearly Demonstrates Flaming Resentment Over Roosevelt Attitude

BARKLEY LEADS MOVE

Democrats Tell President He Can Have Peace But At A Price

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—An aroused senate rode rough shod over the will of President Roosevelt today, rejecting his veto of the tax bill and enacting it into law. The overwhelming vote to override the veto was 72 to 14, a crushing defeat for the White House.

Senator Alben W. Barkley, who dramatically broke with the President over his veto of the tax bill, led his colleagues in repudiating President Roosevelt's argument against the $2,315,000,000 revenue measure. It was Senator Barkley's first official act in the senate since his break with the President, his resignation as party leader and unanimous re-election with the full confidence of the Democratic majority.

Today's action in the senate followed the house vote of 299 to 95 to override the veto, clearly demonstrating the flaming resentment of the legislators over President Roosevelt's denunciation of congress.

Peace Offered

Senate Democrats, spurred to new heights of independence, told President Roosevelt he can have the cooperation of congress—but at a price.

The price is maintenance of the legislative power and suppression of advisers accused of misusing vast powers given them.

Republican members were even more pointed in their demands that Mr. Roosevelt "clean house" in the sprawling executive branch of the government.

The congressional position was put up to the President as Sen. Barkley renewed old expressions of mutual esteem with Mr. Roosevelt but made it plain there also must be mutual cooperation in the future.

Re-elected unanimously after resigning in his explosive break with the President over the tax veto, Barkley told the chief executive that "in this great crisis of our nation's history we must all seek some common ground upon which we can meet and have confidence in one another."

"That applies to all the branches of our government," declared Barkley in reply to President Roosevelt's urgent appeal to continue as majority leader. "If we cannot trust one another in this tragic period of the history of our nation and of the world, how can the people trust us?"

Harmony Possible

Barkley said he hoped the incident would be instrumental in bringing the executive and legislative departments closer together but he did not back down from his stand that the President's veto message was an attack on the integrity of congress. Barkley accepted, however, the President's disavowal of any intention to reflect on congressional integrity.

Democratic senators said in the future they will look on Barkley as their leader rather than as a liability. (Continued on Page Three)

CASHIER GIVEN TASKLESS JOB TO AVERT STRIKE

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—Hiring of an extra cashier who is paid, but does no work, has kept a union picket line away from a newly opened cafeteria in Union Square.

Alfred Seitz, owner of the eating place disclosed today.

Seitz said he first signed a contract with the United Office and Professional Workers of America, Local 16 (CIO) and obtained the two cashiers, he needed. He said that the Hotel and Restaurant Workers, Local 448, AFL then sent him one cashier whom he hired although there is no work for him to do. Seitz said he thought it was the best course to take to avoid possible harm to his new business.

Closer Understanding Of War Problems Object Of New Parley

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—Plans were believed to be under way today for holding an important Anglo-American diplomatic meeting in London in the near future.

The meeting is expected to bring about a closer understanding between the American and British governments on some of the outstanding war and postwar political problems.

It also is expected to strengthen relations between the British foreign office and the state department.

While there has been remarkably close coordination of views on the higher level of Anglo-American wartime relations—especially between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill, the state department and the British foreign office have (Continued on Page Three)

President Will Press For Labor Draft Though Opposition Continuing

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—Inside fact is that the President is not getting much help from his Cabinet on the universal labor draft proposal. But his "old Dutch is up," and he is determined to go ahead with it, anyway.

How great a surprise his labor draft message was to his close advisers is illustrated by War Manpower Chief Paul McNutt. On the night before FDR sent his message to Congress proposing the new legislation, McNutt was speaking before a group of his manpower administrators, assuring them that there would be no national service act. "I would be the first to know about it," he said.

Next day, without a word to McNutt, the President urged Congress to pass a national service act.

Only a few insiders knew it but, much earlier in the war—in fact, just after Pearl Harbor—McNutt himself proposed a national service act. Later, after Judge Vinson became Economic Stabilizer, McNutt sold him on the idea and together they carefully wrote a draft bill which set up safeguards for labor and carried none of the Constitutional dangers of the Austin-Wadsworth bill.

However, some of Bernie Baruch's friends on Capitol Hill, apparently tipped off by him, sent word that they would not pass it. So the whole thing lapsed until the President sprang his surprise move—which he did without consulting Byrnes, Judge Vinson or his Cabinet.

Note: Instead of taking the national service bill carefully prepared by Vinson and McNutt, Judge Sam Rosenman has now asked Oscar Cox, Leo Crowley's legal expert, to do the job.

AGENCY CHIEFS OPPOSE PLAN

How sharply the Roosevelt Administration is split regarding the labor draft is indicated by a series of backstage meetings held by different leaders. One was called by Donald Nelson, at which he quizzed War Production Board moguls about the labor draft. Almost unanimously, they replied that industry didn't need it, that it would only cause trouble, perhaps hinder production.

Simultaneously, Under Secretary of War Patterson suggested that Under Secretary of the Navy Forrestal call a meeting of different war agency chiefs in Forrestal's office to discuss the matter. The meeting was held, and Judge Patterson delivered a hard-hitting,

COUNTY SCHOOLS GET $40,000 OF STATE FUNDS

Nearly $40,000 in checks from the state Department of Education as the first quarterly settlement under the school foundation fund went out to Pickaway county schools Friday from the office of George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools.

The distribution included: Ashville, $2163.95; Darby township, $3398.84; Deer Creek township, $2685.98; Harrison township, $940.39; Jackson township, $2210.75; Madison township, $907.05; Monroe township, $2998.19; Muhlenberg township, $896.23; New Holland, $2792.35; Perry township, $2065.10; Pickaway township, $1687.78; Salt Creek township, $3302.02; Scioto township, $4597.18; Tipton, $628.41; Walnut township, $4211.07; Washington township, $3372.09; Wayne township, $861.72.

PRICES CUT ON VIRGINIA TYPE PORK PRODUCTS

Retail ceiling prices of dried pork specialties will be reduced an average of 10 percent effective March 1. Announcement of the revision in price was made Friday by the Office of Price Administration.

Products included in the revision are Virginia type cured hams, bacon, sides, jowls and shoulders. The new ceilings are made possible by previous reductions in wholesale prices.

The slashes include: Whole or half hams 5 to 6 cents a pound, sliced hams 6 to 7 cents a pound, bacon 4 to 5 cents, jowls 2 cents, sides 3 to 4 cents and shoulders 5 cents.

Map Reading—The Easy Way

YOU CAN READ THIS MAP

THE eye-appealing figure of Betty Grable has been called into the Army air force at Lowry field, Denver, Colorado. Here Sergeant Richard P. Bates is using a pin-up girl map as a visual aid in teaching map reading. Many Circleville and Pickaway county boys have been trained at Lowry field, all studying map reading, and it is very likely that some of them might have had the opportunity to do their studying on Miss Grable's map. Just how the system works isn't explained, but it would be a mighty nice way to learn a very dry, though important, subject. Notice the hash marks on the sergeant's left sleeve, and the campaign ribbons on his uniform.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

James S. Boggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Boggs of Lakewood, former residents of Circleville, has been promoted from first lieutenant to captain at Freeman army air field, Seymour, Ind. The Seymour base is a school for advanced two engine pilots. He is a flight instructor there.

Captain Boggs is a graduate of Pickaway township centralized high school, and later studied at Duke university, Durham, N. C. In high school he was selected an all-district guard in basketball and was active in dramatic and musical organizations.

Ensign James A. Chilcote has returned to his station at New Orleans, La., after a nine day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Chilcote, Salt Creek township.

Address of Private William C. Burget, 35298731, is first platoon, Company B, 61st infantry training battalion, Camp Wolters, Texas.

Lieutenant David L. Jackson has been given a new address: 749th field artillery battalion, Camp Hood, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rader of East Mill street have received word from their son, George, that he has been promoted to staff sergeant. His address is: S/Sgt. George Rader, 404th Fighter

Epidemic of Measles Paying Regular Three Year Visit To County

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, informed the county board of health Wednesday that while the mild epidemic of scarlet fever in Pickaway county is dying out that a much greater epidemic of measles is prevalent in the county.

"Measles cases appear in great numbers in the state and nation every three years," the health commissioner said, and this appears to be the year. Care should be taken that very young children are protected against this disease as it proves fatal frequently in infants. There has been no death from measles in the county this winter.

Advice Given

Dr. Blackburn in discussing the measles epidemic said that children should be kept out of the light, in a dark room, and that persons other than members of the family should stay away.

No quarantines are posted here for measles although homes in which the illness prevails are closed in some parts of Ohio.

The health commissioner reported that 10 tonsil operations were performed in February at Berger hospital under auspices of the health office, six being from New Holland and four from Monroe township.

One county school has some difficulty with its water supply, but repairs to a pump rectified the trouble.

Fight White Plague

The office's anti-tuberculosis program found four patients ex-

were admitted to nursing service. Four visits to those homes were made by the nurse.

Four cases of impetigo were removed from school and placed under treatment. If proper treatment is applied, no child need miss more than a few days of school.

The thick heavy scabs must be removed before the medicine is applied. Unless this is done a cure cannot be effected. Many of these cases must be treated by the health commissioner or nurse due to the fact that the parents of the children refuse to take them to a doctor.

Seven children were examined for pediculosis. Frequently children are requested to remain out of school on account of head lice. These vermin when carried to school on the head of a child will travel to the heads of other children. When head lice are reported in any school, all mothers should carefully examine their children's heads to see if they have become hosts of these parasites.

Four cases of scabies were given medicine and instructions to the mother for destroying the cause which is a mite which lives on the bed clothing. It is necessary to boil all the clothing in order to kill all the mites. Unless this is done a recurrence of scabies is to be expected.

Sales tax revenues collected in Pickaway county during the week ending February 12 skidded again, the total for that week being only $1,287.42 compared with $1,467.74 in the same week a year ago.

The total for the year is also under 1943's figures by nearly $800. In 1943 to this date the county had put $8,942.75 into the state treasury, while so far in 1944 the amount is only $8,075.91.

TAX BILL VETO VOTED DOWN BY 72 TO 14 COUNT

Vote Clearly Demonstrates
Flaming Resentment Over
Roosevelt Attitude

son agent for the White House. Some members said privately they will expect the Kentuckian to express more forcefully the legislative point of view in conferences with the President.

Meanwhile, Sen. Taft (R) Ohio, voiced doubt that congress can cooperate with the administration on tax matters "so long as Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau retains his present attitude." A leading house Republican, Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, demanded a "purge" of "theorists and star gazers" in the treasury.

Sen. George (D) Ga., chairman of the powerful senate finance committee, said:

"If there is a wholesome determination on the part of the executive and legislative branches of the government to work together as the American people feel they should, a genuine basis of legislative cooperation will be established to secure the peace after the war is over."

"I think that the action in the senate Wednesday, the action of the Democratic caucus and the senate and house in overriding the tax bill veto will not weaken in any sense but will strengthen the war effort. It gives to the American people assurance that the form of government they love will be strengthened."

Wheeler Aims Views

Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., declared that if President Roosevelt had consulted his "liberal friends" in congress he would have avoided many mistakes. Wheeler said:

"The only way to get cooperation between the executive and legislative branches is for the President to consult with members of congress and get their advice rather than calling them in and telling them what he is going to do. Senators after all are in closer touch with the people of the country than a lot of his appointees who never had to face an election."

"He won't get cooperation out of congress if he continues to follow the advice of men now surrounding him with whom he has entrusted so much of the presidential powers that have been given by congress."

Sen. O'Daniel (D) Texas, declared that Mr. Roosevelt must recognize that the legislative branch of the government is independent under the constitution.

"I hope this independence in congress goes far enough to create some real reforms such as stopping strikes in time of war, stopping making war millionaires, getting the government out of private business, stopping useless expenditures in this country and first of all to speed the war effort," he said. "I hope it means we will quit letting labor racketeers run the government."

Tax Bill Provision
WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—Principal provisions of the new tax bill follow:

Individual income taxes — boosted $664,900,000 chiefly by repeal of earned income credit, denial of deduction of excise taxes in calculating income tax and in continuing victory tax at three percent rate.

Corporation taxes — increased $565,400,000, chiefly by boosting excess profits tax from 90 to 95 percent.

Excise taxes and postal rates — increased $1,115,200,000. These increase embrace:

Liquor taxes, increased $6 to $9 a gallon; beer $7 to $8 a barrel; wine taxes 33 to 100 percent.

Admissions, new rate one cent per five cents admission price; cabarets, increased five to 30 percent of charge; club dues, 10 to 20 percent; bowling alleys, billiard tables $10 to $20 per alley or table; railroad, bus airplane passenger fares, 10 to 15 percent.

Communications, toll service, 20 to 25 percent of charge; telegraph 15 to 25 percent; wire and equipment service 5 to 8 percent; local telephone service, 10 to 15 percent of charge.

Jewelry, 10 to 20 percent, excepting watches retailing not more than $65 and alarm clocks retailing not more than $5.

Furs, 10 to 20 percent; luggage 10 to 20 percent; toilet preparations 10 to 20 percent; electric light bulbs 5 to 20 percent manufacturers' price.

Postal rates, first class, local, two to 3 cents; airmail, 6 to 8 cents; fourth class 3 percent; registered mail, raised to 20 cents per $1.35 article; insured 10 to 70 cents per article; C.O.D. mail 20 to 90 cents; money orders 10 to 37 cents.

400 MINISTERS REQUIRED FOR ARMY CHAPLAINS

Nearly 400 clergymen who are qualified to serve as army chaplains are being sought from more than a score of denominations in the Fifth Service Command, headquarters of which is at Fort Hayes, Columbus.

These additional openings in the expanding Chaplain Corps were created recently through the authorization of a 35 percent increase in denominational quotas for chaplains. Approximately 600 clergymen from the Fifth Service Command area already are serving as army chaplains and a substantial number of these are on duty with troops overseas.

Chaplain (Colonel) Claude S. Harker, chief of the chaplains branch of the Service Command, pointed out that qualified candidates for commissions in the Chaplains Corps could expect early appointment due to the increasing need for chaplains.

Applicants must be fully-ordained clergymen between the ages of 24 and 49 and should have ecclesiastical indorsement. They must meet prescribed educational requirements and have a minimum of one year of full-time pastoral experience. All candidates must undergo a physical examination.

Application blanks and detailed information on qualifications may be obtained from the chaplains branch of the Fifth Service Command, Fort Hayes, Columbus 15, Ohio.

TWO COUNTIANS TRANSFERRED TO STATE'S PRISON

Two Pickaway countians who have been serving prison terms in the Mansfield reformatory have been transferred to the Ohio penitentiary.

Prosecutor George E. Gerhardt was informed Friday that Fred Brungs, returned to the reformatory only a few months ago as a parole violator, has been taken to Columbus, and that William Brown, serving time since 1937 for burglary and larceny, has also been taken to the Ohio pen.

Brungs was sent to Mansfield the first time in 1934, but has been on parole several times since then. He has been returned for petty crimes after each parole.

Brown was sent up the first time after a series of garage thefts. No reason was given for the transfers, although the prosecutor said he understood that long term prisoners, men who have broken parole, or men who have become too old for the reformatory are moved to the larger prison.

MARQUIS, 6500 OTHER JAPS DIE ON TWO ISLES

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—The Japanese acknowledged today that their losses on Kwajalein and Roi islands, in the Marshalls, were 6,500 killed, including Marquis Masshiko Otawa, a member of one of Nippon's Royal families, serving as a naval lieutenant.

A Domei overseas broadcast identified Otawa as the second son of Gen. Prince Yasuhiko Asaka.

An imperial communique listed 4,500 members of the army and navy garrisons as killed when U. S. forces occupied the two Marshall islands, while the other 2,000 were civilian workers.

The enemy dispatch sought to make heroes out of the slain Japs by reporting they died in a final charge February 6 after "a death-defying fight of about one week" against what it termed "enemy forces overwhelmingly superior in number."

retaliated with a nuisance raid on London that cost them ten raiders. Royal Air Force heavy bombers twice plastered Schweinfurt with an estimated 2,240 tons of bombs.

1,000 Sorties

In smashing operations during which more than 1,000 sorties were flown the big British bombers directed the bulk of their attack against the Nazi center of ballbearing production, where huge fires still blazed from yesterday's giant U. S. raid on the city.

(The federal communications commission reported that the German-controlled Hilversum radio in Holland left the air this morning, while the Luxembourg, Bremen and Friesland (Holland) stations failed to open their morning broadcasts as usual, possibly indicating further widespread air attacks on the Reich.)

Applying the torch once more, the RAF attackers left a "tremendous conflagration" blazing through the streets and buildings of Schweinfurt.

Thirty-five of the bombers failed to return from the devastating attacks.

Smoke rose to a great height as the RAF planes turned away from the target, which they found well marked from yesterday's American raid and left a blazing inferno after they had dropped their explosives.

Other objectives in northwest Germany also were hit, and the RAF in addition carried out an extensive mine-laying program.

Typhoon fighter-bombers of the Second Tactical Air Force continued the round-the-clock attacks today, with raids on military objectives in Northern France.

Hit Invasion Coast

From dawn through the morning, strong formations of escorted Allied bombers sped across the channel toward the northern coast of France, leading to the belief that the so-called "invasion coast" was again undergoing a terrific pummeling.

In Russia, a four-day-old offensive stormed past captured Rogachev in White Russia and menaced German strong points barring the way to the Minsk gateway to northern Poland. Fanning out west and northwest, the triumphant Soviet legions threatened Bobruisk, Mogilev and even Vitebsk, some 150 miles to the north.

In fact, to German overseas agency announced that the Nazi garrison had "evacuated" Vitebsk, which is an important communications center. Moreover, Vitebsk is considered by many observers vital to success of the German defense of northwestern Russia; forced to quit this town, the Nazis may have to fall back well into the Baltic states.

Another gateway to the Baltics was menaced too, when Russian troops overran Dno, 60 miles east of Pskov and the last barrier to that rail hub on the southern Estonian frontier.

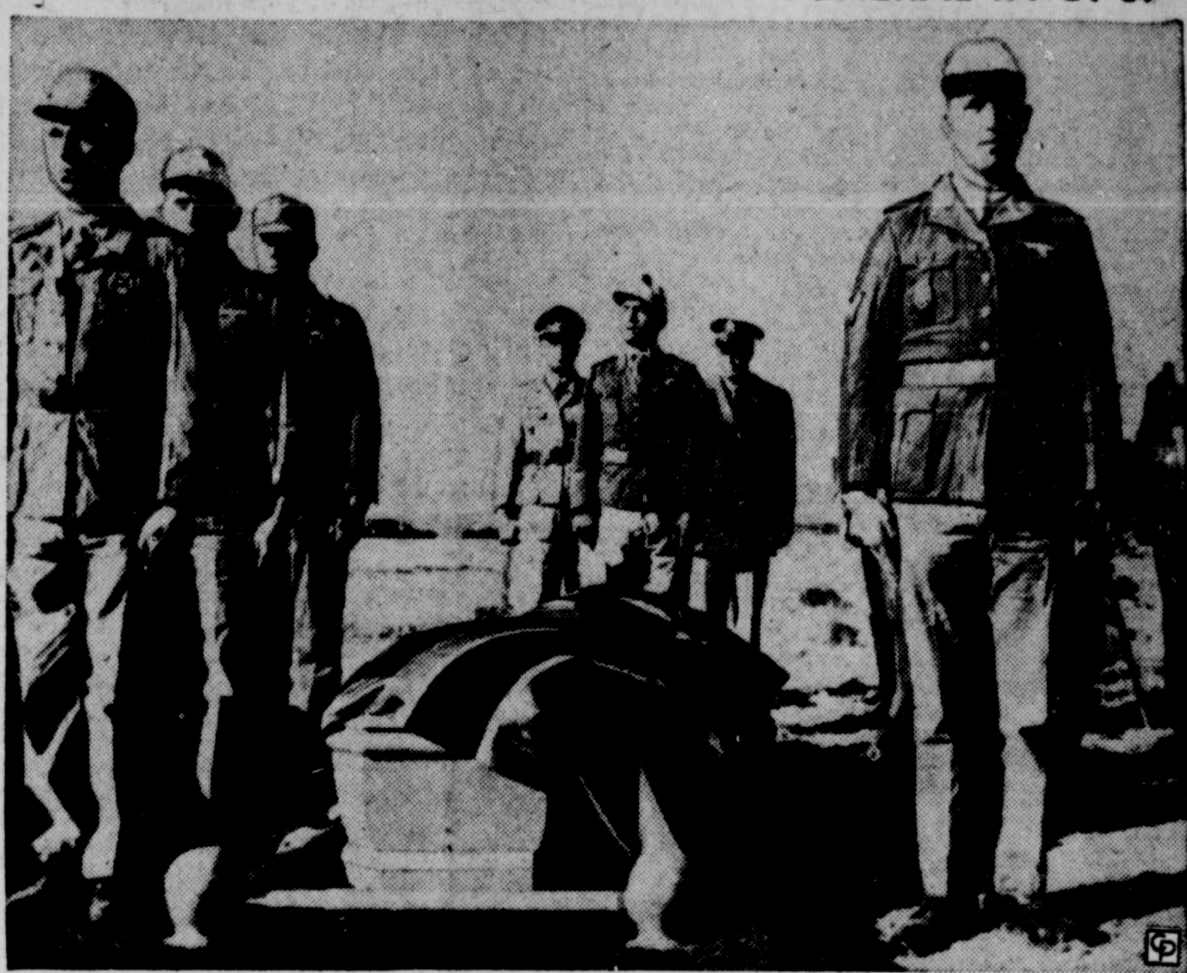

In the Pacific, the American fleet was on the prowl. Details were still lacking of the raid on the Marianas islands, due to security radio silence; these assaults, however, were thought to be but part of a continuous drive into Japan's inner defenses. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's fliers had done well their work of knocking out Bismarck air bases. This was obvious after a destroyer force steamed well into enemy waters to sink 14 vessels and shell strong Jap bases on New Ireland and Duke of York islands.

Dorey, 30, pilot, North Hollywood; Donald L. Jackson, 30, crew chief, Roscoe; James P. Seargeant, 30, radio man, Glendale.

not always seen eye to eye on current problems.

For example, the foreign office has from time to time failed to support as strongly as Washington thought desirable the American policy in respect to the French.

London also is believed to be more favorably disposed toward the part dismemberment of Germany after the war than Washington. There are a number of other problems on which it is felt closer coordination of policy would be desirable.

It was just a year ago in March that British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden came to Washington to hold a series of talks with Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

At that time, both Hull and Eden expressed the view that there should be more frequent personal contacts between leading officials of the state department and the foreign office.

Both Washington and London are of the opinion that closer personal contacts would enable a clarification of American and British views that should prove mutually beneficial.

lished off completely by battle wagons which arrived some time later."

(This was the first mention that battleships shelled Truk. In his communique announcing the raid Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported the raid was carried out by several hundred carrier planes, although he mentioned that powerful naval forces accompanied the squadrons of aircraft carriers.)

Later in the day, Commander Ingerslev's bombers were sent 90 miles west of Truk and spotted several destroyers.

"But we passed them to go after a large convoy obviously back-tracking after having been headed towards Truk," Ingerslev said.

"One of my men got a direct hit on a combination transport and heavy-laden freighter. Before he could complete a full turn it cracked in half. It was impossible for survivors to escape to Truk."

Sum Up Blow

Summing up the results of the tremendous blow at Truk, commander Harrison said:

"I would say that unless the Japs send more ships to Truk it is neutralized now as a shipping base. The fact is that our observations indicated it was more a staging and supply base than the naval base we were led to believe. We were over the target from 8 a. m. until 7 p. m. and saw but one floating drydock capable of handling large shipping though there was considerable evidence of new construction."

"Submarines were sighted in the lagoon, but there was no evidence that the place had been used as a sub base."

TO EVERY ONE

CITIZENS: The fourth National War Loan, as was expected, went over the top like fighting men in a big charge. Fourteen billion dollars is quite a sum of money at any time or in any currency. And there is plenty more where it came from. It is still true, as it was at an earlier period in our history, that "we do not want to fight; but by jingo, if we do, we have the men, we have the ships, and we have the money, too." And we have these fighting requirements in quantity and quality such as no former generation ever imagined. Unfortunately, Pickaway county's War Fund drive did not go over the top. There are several reasons; income tax time with persons who usually buy big amounts of bonds being uncertain just what Uncle Sam is going to take from them; uncertainty about a few other questions; delay in opening the local drive until almost a week after it had been under way nationally. There are others, but those are a few. The man in the street did a good job. The E bond quota is about over the top or has gone over the quota assigned by this time, showing that the man who is able to put his $18.75 or $37.50 or $75 into bonds is doing so. It is the fellows who are putting their big money into the family sock who have caused this drive to fail here. Purchase of War Bonds is simply a form of banking. Citizens exchange one kind of paper money, which bears no interest, for another kind of paper money called a bond, which does bear interest. Uncle Sam, the big banker, will take good care of the investment. So will the fighting men who are now the active guardians of our national wealth. Just the same, it is very decent and patriotic, and an evidence of faith in the federal government, when the people pledge their savings so freely. And these sinews of war will not fail.

Smashing Attack on Truk
Heralds Twilight for Tojo

Battleships Played Vital Role in Marshall Invasion

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The smashing American naval and air attack on Truk, the Japanese "Pearl Harbor," with its toll of 19 Jap ships sunk, 200 planes downed, is the beginning of the end, naval observers agree, for Japan's might at sea.

For many months the ever-growing United States battle fleets have been extending their menacing claws toward the Japanese homelands—and Truk is regarded as the beginning of Tojo's twilight.

With more than 90 per cent of America's sea power concentrated in the direction of Japan and her stolen empire, the assault on Truk served flat notice, to the tune of crashing cannon and bombs, that as far as the Pacific fleet is concerned, the Japanese war is a thing apart from the conflict in Europe.

Groundwork for the Truk attack was laid, in part, in the tremendously successful operations in the Marshall Islands.

Old line naval officers were jubilant over the comparatively easy victory in the Marshalls because they believed the battleship justified itself there as the most important unit in the fleet.

It is true that the 16 and 14-inch guns of the dreadnaughts played a vital part in reducing Jap defenses on Kwajalein.

However, the battleships would not have dared to move within point-blank range of shore if the carrier-based planes had not swept Jap aircraft from the skies.

But no matter how the "battleship" admirals try, they cannot prove in this war that the dreadnaught is "the most important" ship down. Evidence of this deterioration is beginning to appear on all sides. But why wait for the end of the war to do something about it? What has become of the "handy man" who used to be found in almost every community, carrying a kit of tools and ready to tackle almost any small job? Still more important, perhaps—what has become of the handy boy who could mend a broken window or do a small job of painting or carpentry and take pride in his service? There is said to be a good deal of "manual training" in the schools. Is that merely "academic"? If so, this is a good time to put such learning to practical use on the home front.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SOIL SAVERS

FOLKS: When people plow neatly, with furrows at right angles to the road or brook which bounds the field, they are making fishing bad somewhere. Furrows which let the water run down to road or brook permit rain to run off the land easily, taking topsoil with it. The brook runs too swiftly, carrying this precious stuff of life into the river, and the river carries it out to the lake or the sea. The lake or inlet silts up. The water is no longer clear. Plants which feed fish will no longer grow in this water and fish can not live. But when the furrows run parallel to the brook or to drainage ditches edging the road, better still when they run in curves, following contours around slopes instead of up and down, they hold water long enough to grow grain and keep the water table up. The soil stays where it ought to stay. Crops flourish. Brooks, rivers and lakes remain clear, and the fishing adds more good food. It is plain to people who drive about the country—or used to. Where the soil is good, people are well and prosperous; where it is poor and thin, they are sickly and poor. The soil is what we all live on. It is important to keep it in place and maintain its fertility.

TO TARLTON FOLK

FELLOWS: A fox drive in your community should prove to be successful. There are plenty of foxes there, I hear, and the campaign being planned for Saturday morning should result in many animals being eliminated. They have caused much damage in the last few months. Persons participating should be at the postoffice at 10 a. m. to start the drive. Shotgunners are permitted. The foxes killed will be auctioned off and proceeds will go to the village's cigaret fund for men in service. The cause is a worthy one and should be supported.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CROP PRODUCERS

MEN: You fellows read the other evening that production of foods for canning factories will be boosted this year, and prices to be paid for your crops appear to be fair. Farmers who contract with canneries have a real job to do for the war effort, and canning factories are also doing their role by turning out thousands on thousands of cases of canned goods. This food goes to men in service, the Allies, to hungry persons in other countries. I hope that the canning season becomes a great success.

CIRCUITEER.

TO BLOOD DONORS

CITIZENS: The Red Cross blood bank unit will be here March 9 and 10, and these are dates to be remembered. They are important. On that pint of blood you may donate might depend the life of a loved one in the services. These fighting boys are doing a great job in the uniform of the country. Do you intend to do your best to help bring them home safely?

CIRCUITEER.

IN THE FLEET.

The Japs, it is argued, proved it wasn't when they used carrier-based planes to knock out most of our Pacific battleship fleet at Pearl Harbor.

On the other hand, air-minded naval officers will tell you that the battleship still is essential.

Its big guns are needed and it forms a good platform for a large number of anti-aircraft guns.

But the fact remains that wherever it sails, in this multi-dimensional war, will go carriers and planes to sweep the embattled skies clear of the foe.

IS THERE NEW DEAL POLITICS IN REA?

The answer appears to be emphatically "yes," according to testimony of Henry Slattery, REA chief, before the Senate committee investigating REA activities.

Slattery revealed before the committee that the White House four times has "pressured" him for his resignation—and, Slattery said, he flatly refused to quit "under fire."

A similar request, he said, came from Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard.

The REA chief explained that Jonathan Daniels, administrative assistant to President Roosevelt, made three attempts to purge him.

Once Daniels asked for Slattery's resignation "on account of ill health." On Slattery's refusal, Daniels then offered Slattery a new job—helping the British rebuild their bombed-out power plants.

Best bet: Watch for further hearings of the committee in which Committee Counsel Carroll Beedy is expected to bring out the cold, hard fact that the attempted juggling within REA is in line with the "fourth term" drive.

Committee members will recall Wickard to the stand to find out just why Slattery is being given the "brush off."

Results, observers agree, should make headlines on the front page.

DIET AND HEALTH

Doctor Conducts Food Experiment

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HAVE just concluded a dietetic experiment, undertaken for a group of students of nutrition.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

and since in some ways the results were surprising to me I venture to lay them before you.

One day I faithfully made a list of every morsel I had to eat. After breakfast I wrote down the items and their weight. Same with lunch and dinner—I après midi d'un dietician. I want to emphasize that I made no plans for what I should eat. I ate what was put before me or, in the case of lunch, what I chose. No foreordained plan was made for a balanced diet, or the inclusion of the vitamins or minerals or other protective food. It was as nearly as possible the same average kind of food I have on other days left to custom, appetite and chance.

Then I made a list of the food elements that are agreed upon as constituting a balanced diet, and the daily requirements by weight considered necessary by the best authorities.

A Balanced Diet

Here they are:

The basic foods—Protein—50 to 100 grams. Carbohydrate and Fat—enough with protein to make up 1500 to 2500 calories.

Minerals—Salt (5 grams). Calcium (45 gram). Phosphorus (.96 gram). Sulphur (1 gram). Iron (.006 gram). Magnesium, iodine, etc.—traces.

Vitamins—A (1500 units); B consisting of thiamine (1 to 2 milligrams) and riboflavin (.002 gram); C (.06 gram); D (for adults 3 units); nicotinic (.01 mg.); E, H, K, requirements not determined.

Some of the results surprised me. Especially the total calorie and protein intake. I had supposed I was eating about 2500 calories. I had believed the government estimated allowances of 1500 calories a day for a sedentary bloke like me and 2000 for a worker were too low. But my calorie intake for that day which completely satisfied my appetite and made me comfortable was about 1500 calories.

I have always supposed I ate at least 150 grams of protein a day, and have been very scornful of strict nutritionists who say 50 to 70 grams are enough. I recognize that a man can live on 50 grams of protein a day, but did not think that was a desirable maximum.

My own intake amounted to only 73 grams. And I guess I do not eat much more other days.

The other calculations did not surprise me so much, but may be a surprise to others who are artificially stuffing themselves with vitamins, iron, etc. My iron requirement is 8 milligrams a day. I took in twenty times that amount! I got twice my iron requirement in my egg at breakfast.

I got a little more calcium than I needed. My phosphorus intake was close to the minimum requirement. I was lower in that than anything.

As to vitamins, I am flooded with them. I took in 2890 of A, and I only need 1500; enough B thiamine and riboflavin; three times as much C as requirements demand, and sunshine will give me plenty of D.

And again I emphasize I did not plan the meals to get a large vitamin or mineral content. They just came naturally in the food that was set before me.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

SYNOPSIS

A mysterious assassin cut short the gay career of Syria Verne, artist's model, just as she was answering the telephone in her penthouse apartment to which she had returned soon after midnight following a quarrel with Pierre Sturgis, art photographer. The police could find no gun, significant fingerprint, nor other evidence of an intruder. The evening of the murder, Syria had met an old friend, Argus Steele, author and former detective, in the Penguin Club where he was dining with Ellen Curtis, a model. Syria left, accompanied by Sturgis. Bill Carstairs, III, playboy introduced his latest blonde, Dorry, to Ellen and Argus. Later, Ellen found Dorry in the ladies' room, weeping because Bill "was phoning that awful Syria Verne again." Ellen noticed a snubbed revolver in Dorry's open purse. . . . Next morning, Ellen phoned Argus to tell him that Syria had been murdered. Police Inspector Grange visited Steele as the investigation gets under way. While discussing the crime, Argus has asked: "Who was that beautiful damsel you were with last night around 11:30?" The color rose to Grange's cheeks.

CHAPTER SEVEN

"How do you know about it?" he asked lamely.

"I suppose you were just carrying out a routine investigation. Kate probably doesn't mind your stepping out once in a while, though."

"As a matter of fact," Grange said earnestly, "I was just helping a friend out of a jam."

"Mighty attractive jam, I'm thinking. Next time call me up. Always glad to help a friend at a time like that." He patted the inspector's arm and walked with him toward the hall. Grange confronted him.

"Kidding aside, Steele, if I were you I wouldn't plan on leaving town for a few days," he smiled. "You know—I might need your advice."

The offices of Roger Flagg, model-agent, occupied half a floor in a Fifth Avenue skyscraper. It was 11:30 when Argus entered the green and white, faultlessly decorated waiting room. The walls on either side were lined with enlarged photographs of pulchritudinous models. He had seen their faces dozens of times staring at him from the pages of magazines and from bill boards. Girls sauntered in and out. Each carried a hatbox and each looked as if she had just stepped off the cover of a toponotch fashion monthly.

"May I help you?" asked the receptionist, who was sitting behind a desk in the corner. Just then a tall, slender blonde, wearing a tiny hat perched precariously over one eye, and a tight-fitting black dress, brushed past Argus. The receptionist's question fell on deaf ears. He spun around in a complete arc to watch the model's progress through the office and out the door.

"May I help you?" the receptionist repeated in a louder tone.

"What?" Argus asked. "Oh, I beg your pardon?"

"You've never been in this office before, have you?" she asked with an amused twinkle.

"No, and I can see where I've been guilty of a grave oversight."

"Do you want to register?"

"Register?" Argus looked surprised.

"Yes. All our models do that when they come to work for Mr. Flagg." She surveyed Argus' regular features. "I—I assume, that is, you are here for that purpose," she hedged.

"Oh, so you have male models, too?" Argus said. "I'd never thought of that." He laughed. "Would it mean I'd get to pose with some of these girls around here?" The receptionist smiled but regarded him suspiciously.

"What did you say your name was?"

"I didn't," said Argus. "But now that you ask, it's Steele. Argus Steele."

"Oh, Mr. Steele, I'm sorry!" she said. "Mr. Flagg's expecting you."

agent looking at some photographs. She jumped up when Argus entered.

"Thank heaven you're here!" she said. "Oh, Argus, isn't it just too awful about Syria? When I think that she only yesterday I worked with her and she was alive and . . ."

"It certainly is tough, dear," Argus agreed. Flagg had stood up. Argus noticed that he was quite tall and well-built.

"Mr. Flagg, this is Argus Steele," Ellen said. Flagg put out his hand. His grip was firm.

"How do you do, Mr. Steele?" He let go Argus' hand. "Ellen and I have just been reminiscing about poor Syria. We're both pretty much upset. Sit down, won't you?" Argus did so. "Ellen's told me a lot of nice things about you, incidentally, and I'm glad you came over." His voice was clipped, almost British.

"Don't believe a word of it, Mr.

"Ellen and I have just been reminiscing about poor Syria," Flagg announced.

First door to the left down that corridor."

A winsome brunette came over and sat down in one of the chairs. She looked like Hedy Lamarr, Argus thought.

"There's no hurry," he said. "I mean—if Mr. Flagg's busy—" The girl crossed her legs and opened her coat at the throat.

"I believe that Mr. Flagg and Miss Curtis have been waiting for you, sir."

"Well, in that case," Argus toyed with his hat, "I'd better go in."

Flagg was sitting in a high-backed chair behind a broad desk. His hair was ash blonde and his face was tanned. His dark eyes were wide and well-spaced. But his most arresting feature, Argus thought, was his large nose. He guessed the man's age to be around forty. Ellen was sitting across from the model.

"I've read some of your books," declared Flagg with a faint smile. "My public! Bless you!" exclaimed Argus. Then, changing his tone, "I don't wonder that you're broken up about Syria. It certainly came as a thunderbolt to me and I hadn't seen her in four years, until last night. But you've seen her and worked with her right along."

"She was a wonderful girl," Flagg said. "I rather felt like a godfather to her. She's been working for me over three years now, and the big breaks were just beginning to come her way. She seemed so happy about everything, too. Who do you suppose could have done such a thing—and why?"

Metta Mae Hickman and David Hays Dill Wed

Ceremony Read At Home of Arthur Sark

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Ferns banked the beautiful, improvised altar in the living room of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sark, Walnut township, where Miss Metta Mae Hickman and Corporal David Hays Dill exchanged their nuptial vows Thursday in a single ring ceremony conducted by the Rev. Dwight Woodworth. A large basket of white gladioli and white snapdragons centered the altar arrangement and the approach was guarded on either side by tall, seven-branch candelabra holding white tapers.

Preceding the service at 7:30 p. m., a 15-minute period of nuptial music opened with a piano solo, "Poem," by Donna Dill, sister of the bridegroom. Two vocal numbers, "Because" and "O, Promise Me," were presented by Mrs. Elizabeth Dunkel, Mrs. Martin Cromley played "To a Wild Rose," by MacDowell, before modulating to the wedding march. The bride, who lives at the Sark home, was given in marriage by Mr. Sark.

For her wedding Miss Hickman chose a street-length frock of pastel blue with self trim, complemented with black accessories. She wore a strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a small white Bible with an orchid on the cover and having streamers of white satin ribbon tied with white rose buds.

Her sister, Mrs. Emerson Hoffhines, wore a beige suit with black accessories as she served as matron of honor. Her corsage was of pink, shattered carnations. Frank Dill was best man for his brother.

Corsages of pink carnations were worn by Miss Dill and Mrs. Cromley. Mrs. Dunkel's flowers being white carnations. The corsages were gifts of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Sark were hosts at an informal reception following the service. Mrs. Hays Dill, mother of the bridegroom, joining them in receiving the 30 relatives and close friends.

Mrs. Sark wore a gown of violet with black velvet trim and had a corsage of white rose buds pinned at her shoulder. Mrs. Dill was in black crepe with white trim and her flowers also were white rose buds.

Mrs. Frank Dill, who assisted in receiving the guests, was in a black, sequin-trimmed frock and wore arrangements of pink carnations in her hair. Collin Dill, brother of the bridegroom, seated the guests.

The bride's table was centered with a beautifully decorated wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Guarded with four tall white candles, the cake was in a garland of greenery, white roses and carnations. Mrs. Frank Dill and Donna Dill presided.

Corporal Dill and his bride left later in the evening for a wedding trip to Chicago, Ill.

The former Miss Hickman is a graduate of Walnut township school and attended Capital university for two years. She is widely known as a musician in Pickaway county.

Corporal Dill, son of Mrs. Hays Dill of Walnut township and the late Mr. Dill, is a graduate of Central Academy of Commercial Art of Cincinnati. He was with the Fawn-Arts studio in Cleveland until his induction into army service. He is now stationed at Camp Ellis, Ill.

Guests from a distance at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haines, grandparents of Corporal Dill, Mr. and Mrs. Collin Campbell and daughters, Claire Frances and Joan, and Mrs. Dunkel of Washington C. H.

U. B. Aid Society

Ladies' Aid society of the United Brethren church met Thursday at the community house with 35 members and guests present for the event. Miss Viola Woolver was in charge of the devotionals and Mrs. C. O. Kerns, the business hour. Arrangements were made to have a silver tea, February 29, at the community house. The society voted also to entertain the Christian Education convention to be in Circleville June 20, 21 and 22.

Miss Woolver read "Two National Heroes" in opening the program. Mrs. Ralph Long read "Jackie and Patsy." Mrs. Nannie Beery read, "Trust, and Be Not Afraid," a reading dedicated to the Rev. J. E. Huston; Mrs. Frank Hawkes, "Two Pastors." The session was closed with prayers by Mrs. Roy Groce, Mrs. Hawkes and Mrs. Long.

Washington Grange

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Reid, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday at their home in Washington township, were delightfully honored Thursday at the meeting of Washington Grange in the school auditorium. About 50 were present for the evening.

After the wedding march played by Miss Dorothy Glick, the honor guests were presented by Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Valentine. Ralph DeLong, worthy master of Washington Grange, offered congratula-

M. Bowman and Lawrence Warner; pantomime, "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," Mr. and Mrs. Karl Brown and Miss Ethyl May as reader.

A dessert course was served at tables lighted with golden colored candles and decorated with appropriate anniversary appointments.

Lutheran Family Circle

The Family Circle of Trinity Lutheran church celebrated its first anniversary Thursday at the February session in the parish house, about 50 members gathering for the evening. A carry-in supper was served at tables arranged in the form of a V. A surprise feature of the occasion was the lovely anniversary cake baked by Mrs. Luther List, which was served with a dessert course including ice cream, the surprise gift of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Sievert. Patriotic decorations of the tables included red, white and blue candles.

At the close of the supper hour, Carl Leist conducted a short business hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Sievert were in charge of the program which opened with a vocal duet by Miss Janice Merrill of Columbus and Mr. Leist, with Mrs. William Burget at the piano; reading, "Lincoln's Gettysburg Address," Ronald List; recitation, "Washington," Edwin Walters and Walter Sievert. Sherman H. Schuman, Red Cross Field executive, gave an interesting and informative talk on Red Cross work. Charles Walters conducted a quiz on Washington and Lincoln and contests and stunts concluded the delightful affair.

The next session will be March 30 in the parish house.

Royal Neighbors

Eighteen members and guests attended the meeting of Royal Neighbors of America Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clydus Leist, East Mound street. A covered dish supper was followed by a brief business meeting in charge of Mrs. Oscar Root.

Mrs. William Cady served as installing officer when officers for the ensuing year were inducted. The charter of the organization was draped in memory of Mrs. Ellen Pickel who had been a member for 44 years.

Surprise Party

Past Chief's Club

Mrs. Will Fitzpatrick of Elm avenue will entertain members of the Past Chief's club Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. at Mrs. Marion's party home.

Jesus Presents Himself as the Messiah

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Feb. 27 is Mark 11:1-12:44, the Golden Text being Mark 14:61, 62, "Again the high priest asked Him, and said unto Him, Art Thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed? And Jesus said, I am.")

JESUS and His disciples were on their way from Bethany, at the mount of Olives, to Jerusalem. Jesus told two of the disciples to go into a nearby village where they would find a colt, an ass, which had never before been ridden, tied. They were to loose and bring him to Jesus. If anyone asked them why they did it they were to say, simply, "The Lord hath need of him."

The men did this, and brought the colt to Jesus. They put their own garment on the colt for Jesus to ride on, and many in the multitude which had gathered about them, spread their garments in the way and some cut down branches from the trees and strewed them in the way. . . . They went before Him and after Him, crying, "Hosanna: Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord: Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord: Hosanna in the highest."

This was Jesus' triumph. The donkey, or ass, was used much more by the common people than was the horse, which was mostly used in battle. These asses were used as beasts of burden, for work in the fields or mills and for riding.

Jesus Goes to Temple

Riding so, with those who loved and admired Him about Him, Jesus came to the temple, and looked about, and when evening had come He again went to Bethany to the home of Mary, Martha and Lazarus, whom He had recently raised from the dead. Next morning they started again for Jerusalem, without having had breakfast. Seeing a fig tree with leaves on it, Jesus went to it, hoping there would be some figs, but He found there were none. Jesus said to the tree, "No man eat fruit of thee hereafter for ever."

And the tree withered away. Jesus saw an opportunity to teach a lesson with this tree, warning unfaithful Israel that it would bring a curse down upon itself. When they came to the temple, Jesus threw the money changers out for the second time, saying, "Is it not written, My house shall be called of all nations the house of prayer? but ye have made it a den of thieves." Hearing this the scribes and Pharisees sought to destroy Him for interfering with what they felt was their business.

Jesus' saying about prayer should be remembered. "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them." But, He added, when you pray and remember that you have a quarrel with anyone, go to that person and make up with them, forgive them, so that your Father in heaven may forgive you your sins.

Enemies Try to Trap Jesus

Trying to trap Jesus, as usual, the scribes and Pharisees asked Him where He got His authority to do the things He did. He countered with a question to them: Is the baptism of John from heaven or of men? He had them there. If they said of heaven, He could say, Why did ye not believe him? If they said of earth, they were afraid of the people who looked on John as a prophet. So they didn't answer. Jesus then refused to answer their question.

Jesus taught the people by a parable. He said a certain man planted a vineyard, built all the necessary equipment and rented it to some men to share the profits. When he sent a messenger to get his share of the returns they beat the man; another they wounded severely, another they killed, and when at last he sent his only son, they killed him. Of course the man killed these wicked men so they lost all.

Jesus, of course, was the Son who was killed by the wicked husbandmen, and Israel was the loser by not accepting Him when He was sent to save them.

Again the priests sought to catch Jesus by asking if it was lawful for Jews to pay tribute to Caesar. Jesus asked for a coin, and when Caesar's image was found on it, He said, "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." They used the coin for bargaining, selling, for protection under Caesar, so why should they not pay tribute to Caesar?

We will skip the silly question asked by the Sadducees, about the seven brothers who successively married the same woman as each died, the question being who would claim her in heaven. Jesus said there is no marriage in heaven.

Not all the scribes were the hypocrites that Jesus called them. When Jesus was asked what was the first commandment, and He answered to love God, and the second was to love thy neighbor, a scribe agreed with Him, and Jesus said to him, "Thou art not far from the kingdom of God."

Sitting near the treasury where gift offerings were dropped for the temple, Jesus watched rich men put in large sums, but at no sacrifice. A poor widow dropped two "mites," which make a farthing—a fourth of a penny. Jesus declared that she had given more than any other, because of her poverty she had given all she had. Hers was a real sacrifice to the Lord.

FLIERS DROP GIFTS
 MELBOURNE—A strange friendship has developed between natives on a lonely South Pacific island and U. S. Navy patrol fliers. Gifts were dropped near a village by the airmen and soon the natives appeared every time the planes went over. Then they began writing notes on the beach with bits of rock and wood. One message said: "The great thank to our friend thanks you we will help you when we pray because you help us very much to us." How the natives acquired their meager English is not known, but the fliers believe a missionary may have served among them at some time.

Newark Looking Like Championship Timber As Tournament Nears

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles dealing with the prospects of teams figured to play a key part in the forthcoming state basketball tournament. Today's article centers on the Newark club which is the defending Class A champion. Others, which will follow, deal with Martins Ferry, Canton, Timken, Findlay, to mention a few.

By Loren W. Tibbals

NEWARK, Feb. 25—Inch by inch Newark's power-laden Wildcats are moving closer to another Ohio Class A high school basketball championship and if the current Wild ones win out this year it will be their fourth state championship in nine years.

The recital of Newark's advancement to a top place among Ohio's scholastic cage leaders is a story in itself. We'll try to be brief before hashing over current prospects.

The whole business of winning champions started for Newark way back in 1936 when Clarence "Red" Orr astounded the entire state by leading his Licking county team to a state crown after dropping 10 games during the regular season. You would think a team that lost 10 games couldn't win any sort of title—little lone the state championship. But somehow or another Newark accomplished the seemingly impossible.

Another Then
 In 1938 Orr gave Newark another state title after winning the Central district championship in 1937. And then, in comparison with the lush 1936-'38 seasons, followed four years of dismal campaigning.

At the start of the 1942-'43 season Orr was commissioned in the Coast Guard and with him, so the book says, went Newark's basketball hope. He was replaced by Max Douglas, who up to then was Orr's supply line as a Newark junior high school coach. Max took over and in record time whipped together a team which eventually swallowed up everything in sight—including another state championship.

Just everybody in the sports business—coaches, writers and fans alike—were agreed that the 1943 Wildcats were about as good a team as could be found in the high school ranks anywhere. There wasn't a national high school tourney last year and so they didn't get an opportunity to show their stuff outside of the Buckeye realm. Maybe it was a good thing—for other state champs at least.

But this year Douglas came up with another world beater and the present 'Cats are considered the equal, or by some—superior, to their predecessors. This, of course, will not be decided one way or another until Newark has been bounced from the tournament ranks or wins out again. And maybe not even then.

At any rate Newark is expected to be on the firing line when the cream of the schoolboy fives converge on Columbus March 25 to settle the 1944 crown.

On the basis of their pre-tournament showing, Newark is one of the favorites for the big trip to Columbus. This is the consensus of most fans because competition is expected to be considerably below last year's standards in both the Central district and the southwestern quarter of the state—and, too, because the Wildcats are as tough a band, possibly tougher, than a year ago.

The current Newark edition is built around Paul Jackson, a 17-year-old senior whose 234 points have been one of the big factors in the team's 19-game win streak. Jackson, a guard, is a holdover from last year's team along with Forwards Bob Gorsuch and Vernon Williams, Center Ken Campbell and Guard Bill Blaine.

DODGERS TO DON SATIN TO PLAY NIGHT CONTESTS
 NEW YORK, Feb. 25—Whoops! the Brooklyn Dodgers are going in for satins—white and baby blue shades—but strictly for evening wear.

The Bums are going to be dressed up by their president, Branch Rickey, who announced that the white satin suits, designed to dazzle the Dodgers' opponents and enthrall the fans, will be worn at home games. Uniforms of a delicate shade of baby blue will be donned on the road.

The material, the same as that used for football pants, is durable, said Rickey. "The point, however," said Rickey, "is that these uniforms will be colorful under lights."

TUBBYS ENTER
 CHICAGO, Feb. 25—The Sheboygan Redskins, National league runner-up, and the Columbus O. Tubbys were entered today as the fifth and sixth teams to compete in the sixth annual world championship basketball tournament in the Chicago stadium March 20 to 25. Teams already given berths are the Fort Wayne Zollners, National league champions; Camp Campbell, Ky.; Indianapolis Pure Oilers, and the Pittsburgh, Pa., Sheriffs.

North fooled a kibitzer when he opened this deal with a bid of diamonds instead of spades, thereby making it gosh-awful difficult for him ever to show that his spades were five cards long. But that turned out not to be necessary. His diamond bid was because he feared his partner might respond with hearts, which would enable him to show his spades at the one level if he started with diamonds, but would compel him to bid three in order to show his

COUNTY QUOTA ESTABLISHED AT RECORD HIGH

Field Worker Speaks At Kick Off Meeting Of Local Leaders

IMPORTANCE STRESSED

School Children Urged To Assist In Assuring Success Of Campaign

More than 150 Circleville and Pickaway county persons, all pledged to put forth an all-out effort, are ready today to start the Pickaway county Red Cross War Fund campaign drive next Wednesday. The goal assigned the county is $24,300, much larger than any previous goal set in the last 20 years.

Last year the county raised $16,800 for the National Red Cross War Fund.

A kick-off meeting was conducted Thursday afternoon in Red Cross headquarters with Harry Humiston, Red Cross field worker who has seen services in various army camps, as the speaker.

Mr. Humiston, who had appeared at the Rotary club meeting earlier in the day, related the work being done by Red Cross throughout the world, informing the Red Cross campaign workers that wherever boys are serving the Red Cross is carrying on its work.

Important Job

The speaker pointed to the importance of the job being done by Red Cross, serving as liaison between the soldier or sailor and his family in time of stress or emergency.

How badly the money being sought in the National War Fund drive is needed, and how vital it is that the county go over its quota was pointed out by the field representative.

Mr. Humiston has been assigned here to help get the campaign rolling. After speaking at Rotary and at the Red Cross meeting Thursday, he has set up a schedule for a tour through the county, including addresses in Ashville, Salt Creek, Pickaway township and Circleville high schools. The story of the War Fund drive and the need for financial support to keep up the work of the organization was to be told in each school.

Children To Aid

Much of the success of the campaign depends on support received from school youngsters in promoting the Red Cross drive in their homes.

Harley Colwell and Barton Deming, co-chairmen of the Red Cross campaign, have almost completed their organization work, several townships still not being organized completely.

However, persons attending the Thursday meeting represented many parts of the county and of the city.

Township chairmen named to date include: Scioto, Mrs. S. E. Beers; Harrison, Mrs. Roy Steegard; Washington, Marvin Teele; Jackson, Wayne Hoover; Walnut, Mrs. J. B. Cromley; Madison, Mrs. Martha Warner; Monroe, Mrs. Marie Walters; Perry, Mrs. Herbert Louis and Mrs. Roscoe Shipley; Ashville, the Rev. H. D. Fudge.

Townships in which organizations have not been completed include Pickaway, Wayne, Darby, Muhlenberg and Deer Creek, although directors of the campaign have about completed their appointments in all of them.

In some areas, the Red Cross War Fund drive gets under way Monday, February 28, but the Pickaway county chapter has worked out its program so that solicitation will get under way on March 1.

DEPUTIES' CORPS REELECTS ALL LOCAL LEADERS

James Stout, East Franklin street, was reelected captain of the Pickaway County Sheriff's Auxiliary Deputies' corps Thursday evening when the corps met in the Betz restaurant. Mr. Stout has served as head of the unit since its organization.

Other officers named included: Budd F. Harden, first lieutenant; Harry Brown, second lieutenant; John Dunlap, Jr., third lieutenant; and Fred Wittich, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Harden had been serving also as treasurer, but this post was transferred to the secretary.

About 35 men attended the meeting, which was termed highly successful. The newly-organized Pickaway county Youth Canteen was promised support of the corps in any way possible. While the corps is without funds except to carry on its usual activities, it pledged assistance to the Youth Canteen movement.

have been mailed to him, but, for some reason, do not reach his camp. His parents have received some half dozen letters from him during the last year; the latest, written in October, was received about three months later.

Maurice Graham, who is stationed at Camp Lee, Virginia, has been promoted to the rank of Sergeant. He is being visited this week by his mother.

The February meeting of the Ashville P. T. A. was well attended. The P. T. A. Honor Roll with 166 names of Ashville girls and boys in the service was presented to the school. An excellent program followed the business meeting.

The program consisted of several selections by the school orchestra under the direction of Fred E. Brobst; vocal solo—Dorothy Peters; reading—Doris Neal; instrumental trio—Luther Knox, Du Wayne Shook, and Harold Pardee; and two patriotic films. The program was in charge of Mrs. Josephine Bowers.

Guess we will have to change the old saying "Join the Navy and see the world" to "Join the Department of Education if you want to travel." Harold J. Bowers, state director of certification will be in Tiffin, Friday; Fremont, Saturday, Chicago, Illinois on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday; back to Columbus for a day, and then to Ironton, Thursday. Mr. Bowers will give several addresses during his "tour". In between speeches and his regular duties, Harold is assisting local people with those tricky income tax blanks.

HIGHWAY EMPLOYEES TO DONATE TO BLOOD BANK

Employees of the state highway department, including several men who work with the Pickaway county division, will go to Delaware next Tuesday to make blood donations for the Red Cross blood bank.

Richard Hedges, superintendent of state highways in this county, will lead the delegation to Delaware.

President Will Press For Labor Draft Though Opposition Continuing

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—Inside fact is that the President is not getting much help from his Cabinet on the universal labor draft proposal. But his "old Dutch is up," and he is determined to go ahead with it, anyway.

How great a surprise his labor draft message was to his close advisers is illustrated by War Manpower Chief Paul McNutt. On the night before FDR sent his message to Congress proposing the new legislation, McNutt was speaking before a group of his manpower administrators, assuring them that there would be no national service act. "I would be the first to know about it," he said.

Next day, without a word to McNutt, the President urged Congress to pass a national service act.

Only a few insiders knew it but, much earlier in the war—in fact, just after Pearl Harbor—McNutt himself proposed a national service act. Later, after Judge Vinson became Economic Stabilizer, McNutt sold him on the idea and together they carefully wrote a draft bill which set up safeguards for labor and carried none of the Constitutional dangers of the Austin-Wadsworth bill.

However, some of Bernie Baruch's friends on Capitol Hill, apparently tipped off by him, sent word that they would not pass it. So the whole thing lapsed until the President sprang his surprise move—which he did without consulting Byrnes, Judge Vinson or his Cabinet.

Note: Instead of taking the national service bill carefully prepared by Vinson and McNutt, Judge Sam Rosenman has now asked Oscar Cox, Leo Crowley's legal expert, to do the job.

AGENCY CHIEFS OPPOSE PLAN

How sharply the Roosevelt Administration is split regarding the labor draft is indicated by a series of backstage meetings held by different leaders. One was called by Donald Nelson, at which he quizzed War Production Board moguls about the labor draft. Almost unanimously, they replied that industry didn't need it, that it would only cause trouble, perhaps hinder production.

Simultaneously, Under Secretary of War Patterson suggested that Under Secretary of the Navy Forrestal call a meeting of different war agency chiefs in Forrestal's office to discuss the matter. The meeting was held, and Judge Patterson delivered a hard-hitting, somewhat emotional speech for the national service act. However, there was not much response. After the meeting broke up and the different agency chiefs compared notes, it was evident that almost all of them were opposed.

The Patterson meeting, however, gave the tip-off as to who had sold the President on drafting labor. It was the War Department.

AFL boss Bill Green and CIO chief Phil Murray had all doubts of this removed when they went to call on the President.

LABOR'S WAR RECORD
Before registering a protest at the White House, Murray wrote a letter to General Marshall, saying that he had heard the Army was dissatisfied with labor, and without asking whether Marshall had or had not held his famous press conference attacking labor, he requested the Chief of Staff to give his opinion on the job labor had been doing during the war.

General Marshall replied that he did not know much about it and was passing the letter on to General Somervell, in command of Army Service Forces.

Somervell, in turn, wrote Murray a glowing tribute regarding labor's part in the war. Nelson also wrote Murray that labor had done a magnificent job. Finally, Secretary Perkins, in reply to Murray, wrote him that work stoppages had set back production only eight hundredths of one percent, and that labor's record was 99 92/100 percent perfect.

Thus armed, Murray and Green went to the White House, laid the letters before the President.

"There is the record, Mr. President," Murray said, "from your own people. We are not perfect, but few people are perfect, not even your Administration, and I doubt if anyone in the war has a better record than labor with 99 92/100 percent."

The President expressed surprise and said he had not realized labor's record was that high.

SOLDIERS' REACTION TO STRIKES
Murray went on to point out that there were other things also the President didn't realize, namely that many, many times the War Manpower Commission had asked workers to pick up and move to other communities, taking lower wages in order to speed production in vital war industries.

After listening carefully, the President finally explained his reason for proposing the national service act. He based it on the psychological reaction of men at the front to strikes. He said that copies of the Chicago Tribune and Times got over to the troops with exaggerated stories of strikes. Also he said that the soldiers' own newspapers abroad carried stories of strikes which made the men bitter and indignant against the home front. This hurt their morale.

"Then," countered Murray, "it's up to the War Department to get the real truth over to the troops. They are supposed to keep the troops informed. And it is only fair that the men know the report of your own Labor Department that labor's record in the war is 99 92/100 percent."

The President did not oppose this idea, but also he did not budge an inch from his stand that a national service act must be passed.

Note: Another inside story on the labor draft controversy will appear tomorrow.

Map Reading—The Easy Way

THE eye-appealing figure of Betty Grable has been called into the Army air force at Lowry field, Denver, Colorado. Here Sergeant Richard P. Bates is using a pin-up girl map as a visual aid in teaching map reading. Many Circleville and Pickaway county boys have been trained at Lowry field, all studying map reading, and it is very likely that some of them might have had the opportunity to do their studying on Miss Grable's map. Just how the system works isn't explained, but it would be a mighty nice way to learn a very dry, though important, subject. Notice the hash marks on the sergeant's left sleeve, and the campaign ribbons on his uniform.

James S. Boggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Boggs of Lakewood, former residents of Circleville, has been promoted from first lieutenant to captain at Freeman army air field, Seymour, Ind. The Seymour base is a school for advanced two engine pilots. He is a flight instructor there.

Captain Boggs is a graduate of Pickaway township centralized high school, and later studied at Duke university, Durham, N. C. In high school he was selected an all-district guard in basketball and was active in dramatic and musical organizations.

Ensign James A. Chilcote has returned to his station at New Orleans, La., after a nine day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Chilcote, Salter Creek township.

Address of Private William C. Burget, 35298731, is first platoon, Company B, 61st infantry training battalion, Camp Wolters, Texas.

Lieutenant David L. Jackson has been given a new address: 749th field artillery battalion, Camp Hood, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rader of East Mill street have received word from their son, George, that he has been promoted to staff sergeant. His address is: S/Sgt. George Rader, 404th Fighter

In Malay, it is said the natives place a woman in childbirth on a platform over a smudged fire, so that the smoke may protect her and the child from evil spirits.

Walter Crawford of the U. S. Navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Crawford of Walnut street, left Thursday for New York after spending a five-day leave with his parents. He had just returned from England and will rejoin his ship on his return East. He is the youngest of the three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Crawford, all being in service in the navy. # Epidemic of Measles Paying Regular Three Year Visit To County

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, informed the county board of health Wednesday that while the mild epidemic of scarlet fever in Pickaway county is dying out that a much greater epidemic of measles is prevalent in the county.

"Measles cases appear in great numbers in the state and nation every three years," the health commissioner said, and this appears to be the year. Care should be taken that very young children are protected against this disease as it proves fatal frequently in infants. There has been no death from measles in the county this winter.

Advice Given
Dr. Blackburn in discussing the measles epidemic said that children should be kept out of the light, in a dark room, and that persons other than members of the family should stay away.

No quarantines are posted here for measles although homes in which the illness prevails are closed in some parts of Ohio.

The health commissioner reported that 10 tonsil operations were performed in February at Berger hospital under auspices of the health office, six being from New Holland and four from Monroe township.

One county school has some difficulty with its water supply, but repairs to a pump rectified the trouble.

Fight White Plague
The office's anti-tuberculosis program found four patients examined and one skin test made. Three persons were x-rayed and examined by Dr. M. D. Miller of Columbus.

SALES TAX REVENUES SHOW DOWNWARD TREND

Sales tax revenues collected in Pickaway county during the week ending February 12 skidded again, the total for that week being only $1,287.42 compared with $1,467.74 in the same week a year ago.

The total for the year is also under 1943's figures by nearly $800. In 1943 to this date the county had put $8,942.75 into the state treasury, while so far in 1944 the amount is only $8,075.91.

TAX BILL VETO VOTED DOWN BY 72 TO 14 COUNT

Vote Clearly Demonstrates
Flaming Resentment Over
Roosevelt Attitude

son agent for the White House. Some members said privately they will expect the Kentuckian to express more forcefully the legislative point of view in conferences with the President.

Meanwhile, Sen. Taft (R) Ohio, voiced doubt that congress can cooperate with the administration on tax matters "so long as Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau retains his present attitude." A leading house Republican, Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, demanded a "purge" of "theorists and star gazers" in the treasury.

Sen. George (D) Ga., chairman of the powerful senate finance committee, said:

"If there is a wholesome determination on the part of the executive and legislative branches of the government to work together as the American people feel they should, a genuine basis of legislative cooperation will be established to secure the peace after the war is over."

"I think that the action in the senate Wednesday, the action of the Democratic caucus and the senate and house in overriding the tax bill veto will not weaken in any sense but will strengthen the war effort. It gives to the American people assurance that the form of government they love will be strengthened."

Wheeler Aims Views

Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., declared that if President Roosevelt had consulted his "liberal friends" in congress he would have avoided many mistakes. Wheeler said:

"The only way to get cooperation between the executive and legislative branches is for the President to consult with members of congress and get their advice rather than calling them in and telling them what he is going to do. Senators after all are in closer touch with the people of the country than a lot of his appointees who never had to face an election."

"He won't get cooperation out of congress if he continues to follow the advice of men now surrounding him with whom he has entrusted so much of the presidential powers that have been given by congress."

Sen. O'Daniel (D) Texas, declared that Mr. Roosevelt must recognize that the legislative branch of the government is independent under the constitution.

"I hope this independence in congress goes far enough to create some real reforms such as stopping strikes in time of war, stop making war millionaires, getting the government out of private business, stopping useless expenditures in this country and first of all to stop the war effort," he said. "I hope it means we will quit letting labor racketeers run the government."

Tax Bill Provision

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—Principal provisions of the new tax bill follows:

Individual income taxes—boosted $664,900,000 chiefly by repeal of earned income credit, denial of deduction of excise taxes in calculating income tax and in continuing victory tax at three percent rate.

Corporation taxes—increased $565,400,000, chiefly by boosting excess profits tax from 90 to 95 percent.

Excise taxes and postal rates—increased $1,115,200,000. These increase embrace:

Liquor taxes, increased $6 to $9 a gallon; beer $7 to $8 a barrel; wine taxes 33 to 100 percent.

Admissions, new rate one cent per five cents admission price; cabarets increased five to 30 percent of charge; club dues, 11 to 20 percent; bowling alleys, billiard tables $10 to $20 per alley or table; railroad, bus airplane passenger fares, 10 to 15 percent.

Communications, toll service, 10 to 25 percent of charge; telegraph 15 to 25 percent; wire and equipment service 5 to 8 percent; local telephone service, 10 to 15 percent of charge.

Jewelry, 10 to 20 percent, excepting watches retailing not more than $65 and alarm clocks retailing not more than $5.

Furs, 10 to 20 percent; luggage 10 to 20 percent; toilet preparations 10 to 20 percent; electric light bulbs 5 to 20 percent manufacturers' price.

Postal rates, first class, local, two to 3 cents; airmail, 6 to 8 cents; fourth class 3 percent; registered mail, raised to 20 cents per $1.35 article; insured mail 70 cents per article; C.O.D. mail 20 to 90 cents; money orders 10 to 37 cents.

400 MINISTERS REQUIRED FOR ARMY CHAPLAINS

Nearly 400 clergymen who are qualified to serve as army chaplains are being sought from more than a score of denominations in the Fifth Service Command, headquarters of which is at Fort Hayes, Columbus.

These additional openings in the expanding Chaplain Corps were created recently through the authorization of a 35 percent increase in denominational quotas for chaplains. Approximately 600 clergymen from the Fifth Service Command area already are serving as army chaplains and a substantial number of these are on duty with troops overseas.

Chaplain (Colonel) Claude S. Harkey, chief of the chaplains branch of the Service Command, pointed out that qualified candidates for commissions in the Chaplain Corps could expect early appointment due to the increasing need for chaplains.

Applicants must be fully-ordained clergymen between the ages of 24 and 49 and should have ecclesiastical indorsement. They must meet prescribed educational requirements and have a minimum of one year of full-time pastoral experience. All candidates must undergo a physical examination. Application blanks and detailed information on qualifications may be obtained from the chaplains branch of the Fifth Service Command, Fort Hayes, Columbus 18, Ohio.

"Hell, no," he said. "Only a few real monkeys."

TWO COUNTIANS TRANSFERRED TO STATE'S PRISON

Two Pickaway countians who have been serving prison terms in the Mansfield reformatory have been transferred to the Ohio penitentiary.

Prosecutor George E. Gerhardt was informed Friday that Fred Brungs, returned to the reformatory only a few months ago as a parole violator, has been taken to Columbus, and that William Brown, serving time since 1937 for burglary and larceny, has also been taken to the Ohio pen.

Brungs was sent to Mansfield the first time in 1934, but has been on parole several times since then. He has been returned for petty crimes after each parole.

Brown was sent up the first time after a series of garage thefts.

No reason was given for the transfers, although the prosecutor said he understood that long term prisoners, men who have broken parole, or men who have become too old for the reformatory are moved to the larger prison.

MARQUIS, 6500 OTHER JAPS DIE ON TWO ISLES

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—The Japanese acknowledged today that their losses on Kwajalein and Roi islands, in the Marshalls, were 6,500 killed, including Marquis Masahiko Otawa, a member of one of Nippon's Royal families, serving as a naval lieutenant.

A Domei overseas broadcast identified Otawa as the second son of Gen. Prince Yasuhiko Asaka.

An imperial communique listed 4,500 members of the army and navy garrisons as killed when U. S. forces occupied the two Marshall islands, while the other 2,000 were civilian workers.

The enemy dispatch sought to make heroes out of the slain Japs by reporting they died in a final charge February 6 after "a death-defying fight of about one week" against what it termed "enemy forces overwhelmingly superior in number."

retaliated with a nuisance raid on London that cost them ten raiders. Royal Air Force heavy bombers twice plastered Schweinfurt with an estimated 2,240 tons of bombs.

1,000 Sorties

In smashing operations during which more than 1,000 sorties were flown the big British bombers directed the bulk of their attack against the Nazi center of ballbearing production, where huge fires still blazed from yesterday's giant U. S. raid on the city. (The federal communications commission reported that the German-controlled Hilversum radio in Holland left the air this morning, while the Luxembourg, Bremen and Friesland (Holland) stations failed to open their morning broadcasts as usual, possibly indicating further widespread air attacks on the Reich.)

Applying the torch once more, the RAF attackers left a "tremendous conflagration" blazing through the streets and buildings of Schweinfurt.

Thirty-five of the bombers failed to return from the devastating attacks.

Smoke rose to a great height as the RAF planes turned away from the target, which they found well marked from yesterday's American raid and left a blazing inferno after they had dropped their explosives.

Other objectives in northwest Germany also were hit, and the RAF in addition carried out an extensive mine-laying program.

Typhoon fighter-bombers of the Second Tactical Air Force continued the round-the-clock attacks today, with raids on military objectives in Northern France.

Hit Invasion Coast

From dawn through the morning, strong formations of escorted Allied bombers sped across the channel toward the northern coast of France, leading to the belief that the so-called "invasion coast" was again undergoing a terrific pummeling.

In Russia, a four-day-old offensive stormed past captured Rogachev in White Russia and menaced German strong points barring the way to the Minsk gateway to northern Poland. Fanning out west and northwest, the triumphant Soviet legions threatened Bobruisk, Mogilev and even Vitebsk, some 150 miles to the north.

In fact, to German overseas agency announced that the Nazi garrison had "evacuated" Vitebsk, which is an important communications center. Moreover, Vitebsk is considered by many observers vital to success of the German defense of northwestern Russia; forced to quit this town, the Nazis may have to fall back well into the Baltic states.

Another gateway to the Baltics was menaced too, when Russian troops overran Dno, 60 miles east of Pskov and the last barrier to that rail hub on the southern Estonian frontier.

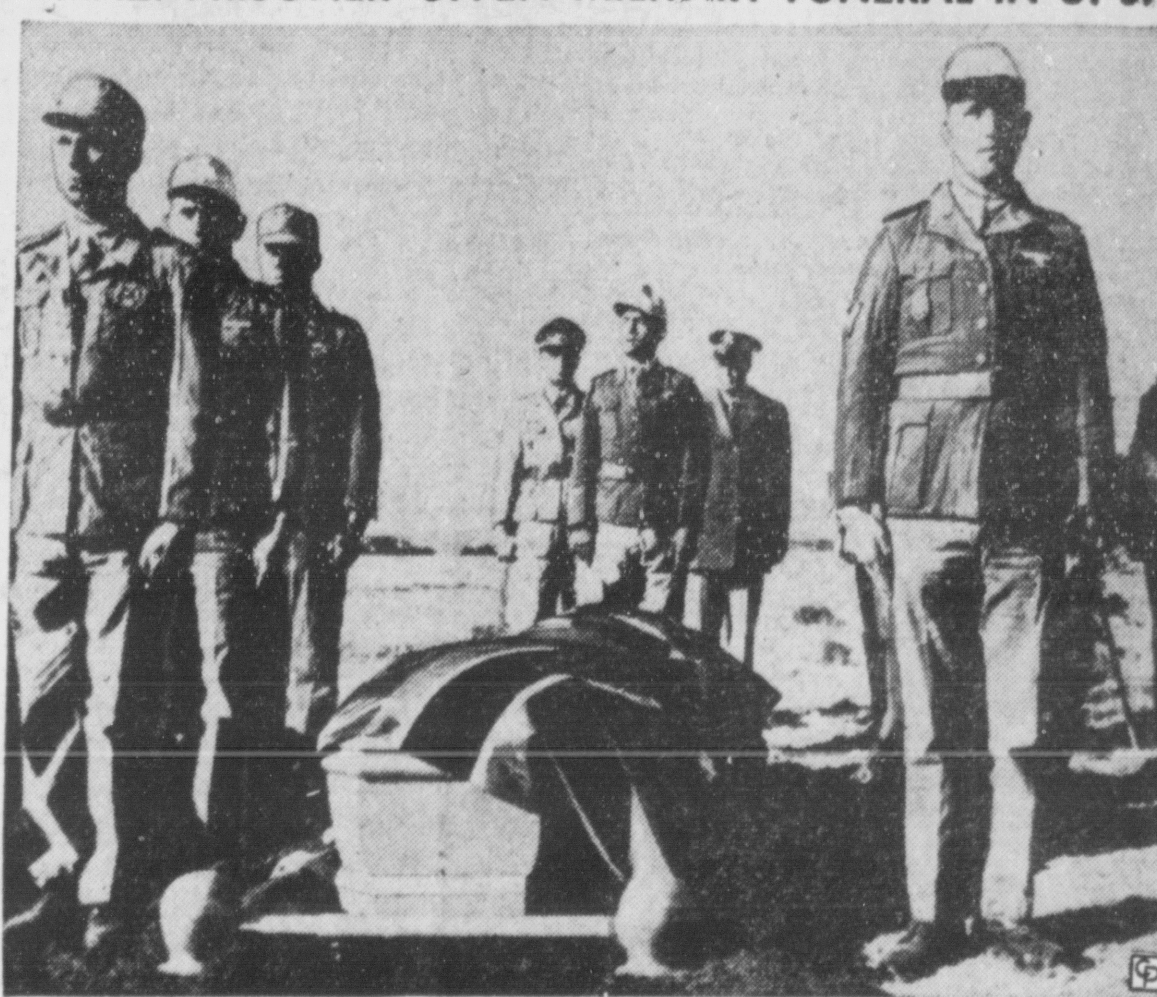

In the Pacific, the American fleet was on the prowl. Details were still lacking of the raid on the Marianas islands, due to security radio silence; these assaults, however, were thought to be but part of a continuous drive into Japan's inner defenses. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's fliers had done well their work of knocking out Bismarck air bases. This was obvious after a destroyer force steamed well into enemy waters to sink 14 vessels and shell strong Jap bases on New Ireland and Duke of York islands.

SUNDAY'S SON KILLED

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 25—The bodies of the four members of a civilian test crew, including that of the son of the late Billy Sunday, today were recovered from the wreckage of a navy bomber. The son of the famed evangelist, Paul T. Sunday, 36, of Beverly Hills, was co-pilot of the plane which crashed near Palmdale, Cal., yesterday. The other victims were: George G. Dorey, 30, pilot, North Hollywood; Donald L. Jackson, 30, crew chief, Roscoe; James P. Sergeant, 30, radio man, Glendale.

not always seen eye to eye on current problems.

For example, the foreign office has from time to time failed to support as strongly as Washington thought desirable the American policy in respect to the French.

London also is believed to be more favorably disposed toward the part dismemberment of Germany after the war than Washington. There are a number of other problems on which it is felt closer coordination of policy would be desirable.

It was just a year ago in March that British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden came to Washington to hold a series of talks with Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

At that time, both Hull and Eden expressed the view that there should be more frequent personal contacts between leading officials of the state department and the foreign office.

Both Washington and London are of the opinion that closer personal contacts would enable a clarification of American and British views that should prove mutually beneficial.

than making a run after a cruiser. Finally "Tail End Charlie" got hit and we all cheered.

"We got two hits, but it was impossible to determine who scored them. They left her dead in the water with her decks painted a peculiar scarlet color.

"It took a bad list and was finished off completely by battle wagons which arrived some time later."

(This was the first mention that battleships shelled Truk. In his communique announcing the raid Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported the raid was carried out by several hundred carrier planes, although he mentioned that powerful naval forces accompanied the squadrons of aircraft carriers.)

Later in the day, Commander Ingerslew's bombers were sent 90 miles west of Truk and spotted several destroyers.

"But we passed them to go after a large convoy obviously back-tracking after having been headed towards Truk," Ingerslew said.

"One of my men got a direct hit on a combination transport and heavy-laden freighter. Before he could complete a full turn it cracked in half. It was impossible for survivors to escape to Truk."

Sum Up Blow

Summing up the results of the tremendous blow at Truk, Commander Harrison said:

"I would say that unless the Japs send more ships to Truk it is neutralized now as a shipping base."

"The fact is that our observations indicated it was more a staging and supply base than the naval base we were led to believe. "We were over the target from 8 a. m. until 7 p. m. and saw but one floating drydock capable of handling large shipping though there was considerable evidence of new construction."

"Submarines were sighted in the lagoon, but there was no evidence that the place had been used as a sub base."

OPEN LETTERS

TO EVERY ONE

CITIZENS: The fourth National War Loan, as was expected, went over the top like fighting men in a big charge. Fourteen billion dollars is quite a sum of money at any time or in any currency. And there is plenty more where it came from. It is still true, as it was at an earlier period in our history, that "we do not want to fight; but by jingo, if we do, we have the men, we have the ships, and we have the money, too." And we have these fighting requirements in quantity and quality such as no former generation ever imagined. Unfortunately, Pickaway county's War Fund drive did not go over the top. There are several reasons; income tax time with persons who usually buy big amounts of bonds being uncertain just what Uncle Sam is going to take from them; uncertainty about a few other questions; delay in opening the local drive until almost a week after it had been under way nationally. There are others, but those are a few. The man in the street did a good job. The E bond quota is about over the top or has gone over the quota assigned by this time, showing that the man who is able to put his $18.75 or $37.50 or $75 into bonds is doing so. It is the fellows who are putting their big money into the family sock who have caused this drive to fail here. Purchase of War Bonds is simply a form of banking. Citizens exchange one kind of paper money, which bears no interest, for another kind of paper money called a bond, which does bear interest. Uncle Sam, the big banker, will take good care of the investment. So will the fighting men who are now the active guardians of our national wealth. Just the same, it is very decent and patriotic, and an evidence of faith in the federal government, when the people pledge their savings so freely. And these sinews of war will not fail.

TO RED CROSS

ORGANIZATION: At a meeting the other day, chairmen of township committees which will carry on the drive to collect $24,300 for the county's contribution to the national Red Cross War Fund heard the need for Red Cross money explained in no uncertain terms. A field worker who knows what Red Cross means to every man in the service was here to outline the program. He knows whereof he speaks. I hope his message was sufficiently inspiring to make you put forth your finest efforts in the interest of the fund campaign.

CIRCUITEER.

TO HOME OWNERS

FRIENDS: One of the most pressing jobs to undertake when the war ends is home repair and maintenance. Only the most pressing repairs have been made since Pearl Harbor and properties are running down. Evidence of this deterioration is beginning to appear on all sides. But why wait for the end of the war to do something about it? What has become of the "handy man" who used to be found in almost every community, carrying a kit of tools and ready to tackle almost any small job? Still more important, perhaps—what has become of the handy boy who could mend a broken window or do a small job of painting or carpentry and take pride in such service? There is said to be a good deal of "manual training" in the schools. Is that merely "academic"? If so, this is a good time to put such learning to practical use on the home front.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SOIL SAVERS

FOLKS: When people plow neatly, with furrows at right angles to the road or brook which bounds the field, they are making fishing bad somewhere. Furrows which let the water run down to road or brook permit rain to run off the land easily, taking topsoil with it. The brook runs too swiftly, carrying this precious stuff of life into the river, and the river carries it out to the lake or the sea. The lake or inlet silts up. The water is no longer clear. Plants which feed fish will no longer grow in this water and fish can not live. But when the furrows run parallel to the brook or to drainage ditches edging the road, better still when they run in curves, following contours around slopes instead of up and down, they hold water long enough to grow grain and keep the water table up. The soil stays where it ought to stay. Crops flourish. Brooks, rivers and lakes remain clear, and the fishing adds more good food. It is plain to people who drive about the country—or used to. Where the soil is good, people are well and prosperous; where it is poor and thin, they are sickly and poor. The soil is what we all live on. It is important to keep it in place and maintain its fertility.

TO TARTON FOLK

FELLOWS: A fox drive in your community should prove to be successful. There are plenty of foxes there, I hear, and the campaign being planned for Saturday morning should result in many animals being eliminated. They have caused much damage in the last few months. Persons participating should be at the postoffice at 10 a. m. to start the drive. Shotguns are permitted. The foxes killed will be auctioned off and proceeds will go to the village's cigaret fund for men in service. The cause is a worthy one and should be supported.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CROP PRODUCERS

MEN: You fellows read the other evening that production of foods for canning factories will be boosted this year, and prices to be paid for your crops appear to be fair. Farmers who contract with canneries have a real job to do for the war effort, and canning factories are also doing their role by turning out thousands on thousands of cases of canned goods. This food goes to men in service, the Allies, to hungry persons in other countries. I hope that the canning season becomes a great success.

CIRCUITEER.

TO BLOOD DONORS

CITIZENS: The Red Cross blood bank unit will be here March 9 and 10, and these are dates to be remembered. They are important. On that pint of blood you may donate might depend the life of a loved one in the services. These fighting boys are doing a great job in the uniform of the country. Do you intend to do your best to help bring them home safely?

DIET AND HEALTH

Doctor Conducts Food Experiment

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HAVE just concluded a dietetic experiment, undertaken for a group of students of nutrition.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

and since in some ways the results were surprising to me I venture to lay them before you.

One day I faithfully made a list of every morsel I had to eat. After breakfast I wrote down the items and their weight. Same with lunch and dinner—l'après midi d'un dictionnaire. I want to emphasize that I made no plans for what I should eat. I ate what was put before me or, in the case of lunch, what I chose. No foreordained plan was made for a balanced diet, or the inclusion of the vitamins or minerals or other protective food. It was as nearly as possible the same average kind of food I have on other days left to custom, appetite and chance.

Then I made a list of the food elements that are agreed upon as constituting a balanced diet, and the daily requirements by weight considered necessary by the best authorities.

A Balanced Diet

Here they are:
The basic foods—Protein—50 to 100 grams. Carbohydrate and Fat—enough with protein to make up 1500 to 2500 calories.

Minerals—Salt (5 grams). Calcium (.45 gram). Phosphorus (.95 gram). Sulphur (1 gram). Iron (.006 gram). Magnesium, iodine, etc.—traces.

Vitamins—A (1500 units); B consisting of thiamine (1 to 2 milligrams) and riboflavin (.002 gram); C (.06 gram); D (for adults 5 units); nicotinic (.01 mg.); E, H, K, requirements not determined.

Some of the results surprised me. Especially the total calorie and protein intake. I had supposed I was eating about 2500 calories. I had believed the government estimated allowances of 1500 calories a day for a sedentary bloke like me and 2000 for a worker were too low. But my calorie intake for that day which completely satisfied my appetite and made me comfortable was about 1500 calories.

I have always supposed I ate at least 150 grams of protein a day, and have been very scornful of strict nutritionists who say 50 to 70 grams are enough. I recognize that a man can live on 50 grams of protein a day, but did not think that was a desirable maximum.

My own intake amounted to only 73 grams. And I guess I do not eat much more other days.

The other calculations did not surprise me so much, but may be a surprise to others who are artificially stuffing themselves with vitamins, iron, etc. My iron requirement is 6 milligrams a day. I took in twenty times that amount! I got twice my iron requirement in my egg at breakfast. I got a little more calcium than I needed. My phosphorus intake was close to the minimum requirement. I was lower in that than anything.

As to vitamins, I am flooded with them. I took in 2890 of A, and I only need 1500; enough B thiamine and riboflavin; three times as much C as requirements demand, and sunshine will give me plenty of D.

And again I emphasize I did not plan the meals to get a large vitamin or mineral content. They just came naturally in the food that was set before me.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

SYNOPSIS

A mysterious assassin cut short the gay career of Syria Verne, artists' model, just as she was answering the telephone in her penthouse apartment to which she had returned soon after midnight following a quarrel with Pierre Sturgis, art photographer. The police could find no gun, significant fingerprints, nor other evidence of an intruder. The evening of the murder, Syria had met an old friend, Argus Steele, author and former detective, in the Penguin Club where he was dining with Ellen Curtis, a model. Syria left, accompanied by Sturgis, Bill Carstairs, III, playboy introduced his latest blonde, Dorry, to Ellen and Argus. Later, Ellen found Dorry in the ladies' room, weeping because her Bill "was phoning that awful Syria Verne again." Ellen noticed a snubbed revolver in Dorry's open purse. . . . Next morning, Ellen phoned Argus to tell him that Syria had been murdered. Police Inspector Grange visited Steele as the investigation gets under way. While discussing the crime, Argus has asked: "Who was that beautiful damsel you were with last night around 11:30?" The color rose to Grange's cheeks.

CHAPTER SEVEN

"How do you know about it?" he asked lamely.
"I suppose you were just carrying out a routine investigation. Kar probably doesn't mind your stepping out once in a while, though."
"As a matter of fact," Grange said earnestly, "I was just helping a friend out of a jam."
"Mighty attractive jam, I'm thinking. Next time call me up. Always glad to help a friend at a time like that." He patted the Inspector's arm and walked with him toward the hall. Grange confronted him.
"Kidding aside, Steele, if I were you I wouldn't plan on leaving town for a few days," he smiled. "You know—I might need your advice."

The offices of Roger Flagg, model-agent, occupied half a floor in a Fifth Avenue skyscraper. It was 11:30 when Argus entered the green and white, faultlessly decorated waiting room. The walls on either side were lined with enlarged photographs of pulchritudinous models. He had seen their faces dozens of times staring at him from the pages of magazines and from bill boards. Girls sauntered in and out. Each carried a hatbox and each looked as if she had just stepped off the cover of a toponath fashion monthly.

"May I help you?" asked the receptionist, who was sitting behind a desk in the corner. Just then a tall, slender blonde, wearing a tiny hat perched precariously over one eye, and a tight-fitting black dress, brushed past Argus. The receptionist's question fell on deaf ears. He spun around in a complete arc to watch the model's progress through the office and out the door.

"May I help you?" the receptionist repeated in a louder tone.
"What?" Argus asked. "Oh, I beg your pardon!"
"You've never been in this office before, have you?" she asked with an amused twinkle.

"No, and I can see where I've been guilty of a grave oversight." "Do you want to register?" "Register?" Argus looked surprised.
"Yes. All our models do that when they come to work for Mr. Flagg." She surveyed Argus' regular features. "I—I assume, that is, you are here for that purpose," she hedged.
"Oh, so you have male models, too," Argus said. "I'd never thought of that." He laughed. "Would it mean I'd get to pose with some of these girls around here?" The receptionist smiled but regarded him suspiciously.
"What did you say your name was?"
"I didn't," said Argus. "But now that you ask, it's Steele. Argus Steele."
"Oh, Mr. Steele, I'm sorry!" she said. "Mr. Flagg's expecting you."

agent looking at some photographs. She jumped up when Argus entered. "Thank heaven you're here!" she said. "Oh, Argus, isn't it just too awful about Syria? I worked with her and she was alive and . . ."
"It certainly is tough, dear," Argus agreed. Flagg had stood up. Argus noticed that he was quite tall and well-built.
"Mr. Flagg, this is Argus Steele," Ellen said. Flagg put out his hand. His grip was firm.
"How do you do, Mr. Steele?" He let go Argus' hand. "Ellen and I have just been reminiscing about poor Syria. We're both pretty much upset. Sit down, won't you?" Argus did so. "Ellen's told me a lot of nice things about you, incidentally, and I'm glad you came over." His voice was clipped, almost British.
"Don't believe a word of it, Mr."

"Ellen and I have just been reminiscing about poor Syria," Flagg announced.

First door to the left down that corridor."

A winsome brunette came over and sat down in one of the chairs. She looked like Hedy Lamarr, Argus thought.

"There's no hurry," he said. "I mean—if Mr. Flagg's busy—" The girl crossed her legs and opened her coat at the throat.

"I believe that Mr. Flagg and Miss Curtis have been waiting for you, sir."

"Well, in that case," Argus toyed with his hat, "I'd better go in."

Flagg was sitting in a high-backed chair behind a broad desk. His hair was ash blonde and his face was tanned. His dark eyes were wide and well-spaced. But his most arresting feature, Argus thought, was his large nose. He guessed the man's age to be around forty. Ellen was sitting across from the model-

Flagg," said Argus. "She's just prejudiced."

"I've read some of your books," declared Flagg with a faint smile. "My public! Bless you!" exclaimed Argus. Then, changing his tone, "I don't wonder that you're broken up about Syria. It certainly came as a thunderbolt to me and I hadn't seen her in four years, until last night. But you've seen her and worked with her right along."

"She was a wonderful girl," Flagg said. "I rather felt like a grandfather to her. She's been working for me over three years now, and the big breaks were just beginning to come her way. She seemed so happy about everything, too. Who do you suppose could have done such a thing—and why?"

STARS SAY—

For Friday, February 25

VERY PROGRESSIVE conditions of exceptional opportunity should be quickly and decisively grasped in order to obtain benefits for new and telling operations in business, finance, investments, speculation and in all manner of professional activities. The forces and energies may be well stimulated for positive grasp of fine prospects. It is an auspicious time for travel, agencies, publicity, writings and promotional enterprises, in which new decisions and agreements should be made with promptness and strategic efforts. Adventure or romance may enjoy sudden and surprising culminations. Shun extravagances.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may expect a particularly lively and eventful year, in which swift, clever and decisive moves may be made while fortunate conditions are in the air. This pertains to writings, contracts, finance, business and legal matters and promotional enterprises, in connection with agencies, transportation and communications. There may be sudden turns demanding definite and prompt action, even if unforeseen change or travel are imperative. The element of adventure and romance is of major importance, but avoid plunging and over extravagance, in business as well as private affections.

Smashing Attack on Truk
Heralds Twilight for Tojo

Battleships Played Vital Role in Marshall Invasion

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The smashing American naval and air attack on Truk, the Japanese "Pearl Harbor," with its toll of 19 Jap ships sunk, 200 planes downed, is the beginning of the end, naval observers agree, for Japan's might at sea.

For many months the ever-growing United States battle fleets have been extending their menacing claws toward the Japanese homelands—and Truk is regarded as the beginning of Tojo's twilight.

U. S. Hurl
See Power
At Japs
With more than 90 per cent of America's sea power concentrated in the direction of Japan and her stolen empire, the assault on Truk served flat notice, to the tune of crashing cannon and bombs, that as far as the Pacific fleet is concerned, the Japanese war is a thing apart from the conflict in Europe.

Groundwork for the Truk attack was laid, in part, in the tremendously successful operations in the Marshall Islands.

Old line naval officers were jubilant over the comparatively easy victory in the Marshalls because they believed the battleship justified itself there as the most important unit in the fleet.

It is true that the 16 and 14-inch guns of the dreadnaughts played a vital part in reducing Jap defenses on Kwajalein.

However, the battleships would not have dared to move within point-blank range of shore if the carrier-based planes had not swept Jap aircraft from the skies.

But no matter how the "battleship" admirals try, they cannot prove in this war that the dreadnaught is "the most important" ship

In the fleet.

The Japs, it is argued, proved it wasn't when they used carrier-based planes to knock out most of our Pacific battleship fleet at Pearl Harbor.

On the other hand, air-minded naval officers will tell you that the battleship still is essential.

Its big guns are needed and it forms a good platform for a large number of anti-aircraft guns.

But the fact remains that wherever it sails, in this multi-dimensional war, will go carriers and planes to sweep the embattled skies clear of the foe.

● IS THERE NEW DEAL POLITICS IN REA?
The answer appears to be emphatically "yes," according to testimony of Henry Slattery, REA chief, before the Senate committee investigating REA activities.

Slattery revealed before the committee that the White House four times has "pressured" him for his resignation—and, Slattery said, he flatly refused to quit "under fire."

A similar request, he said, came from Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard.

The REA chief explained that Jonathan Daniels, administrative assistant to President Roosevelt, made three attempts to purge him.

Once Daniels asked for Slattery's resignation "on account of ill health." On Slattery's refusal, Daniels then offered Slattery a new job—helping the British rebuild their bombed-out power plants.

Best bet: Watch for further hearings of the committee in which Committee Counsel Carroll Beedy is expected to bring out the cold, hard fact that the attempted juggling within REA is in line with the "fourth term" drive.

Committee members will recall Wickard to the stand to find out just why Slattery is being given the "brush off."

Results, observers agree, should make headlines on the front page.

Informal Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. George Kern and daughter, Miss Helen Margaret Kern, of Jackson township entertained February 22 at their home at a dinner honoring Orville Claridge of Columbus who will leave soon to join the armed forces. Present for the affair were Mrs. Lena Claridge, Miss Helen Blessing of Columbus; Mrs. Maggie List and James Hulse of Pherson; Mrs. Anna Justus of Lick Run and Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Hill of Rohtown.

G. O. P. Boosters

Members of the G. O. P. Boosters gathered Thursday at the home of Mrs. Minnie Lockard, 134½ West Main street for the February session. The birthday anniversaries of Lincoln and Washington were observed at the meeting.

Miss Lucille Dumm, president, was in charge of the session which opened with the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mrs. Ruth E. Wignel presented a very interesting discussion on "The Life of Abraham Lincoln," followed by a reading on "George Washington" by Miss Dumm.

A delightful social hour followed the business meeting, delicious refreshments being served at small tables by Mrs. Lockard. After an interesting contest, prizes were awarded Mrs. Blanche Mavis and Mrs. Lillie E. Dumm.

The March meeting will be at the home of Miss Leona Dumm, Walnut street, with Mrs. May Clark as co-hostess.

Evangelical Aid Society
Ladies' Aid society of the St. Paul Evangelical church of Washington township met Thursday at the home of Mrs. W. E. Richter, Washington township. Mrs. Arthur Leist, president, conducted the devotionals. Twenty-two members and visitors were present.

The group included readings and quotations on friends and friendships, group singing of patriotic songs and arranging Valentines for absent members.

Lunch was served after the program.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. D. A. Bowman, East Franklin street.

Business Women's Club
Business and Professional Women's club met Thursday in the club room, Masonic temple, and devoted time to making Buddy bags for the soldier patients at Fletcher General hospital at Cambridge.

Miss Rose Good conducted the business hour, plans being made for a St. Patrick's Day party, March 9. Each member is to take one or more guests. Mrs. Bernard Goeller was elected to membership in the club.

Mrs. Joe Work presented a short paper on "The Four Freedoms."

Past Chief's Club
Mrs. Will Fitzpatrick of Elm avenue will entertain members of the Past Chief's club Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. at Mrs. Marion's party home.

Jesus Presents Himself as the Messiah

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Feb. 27 is Mark 11:1-12:44, the Golden Text being Mark 14:61, 62, "Again the high priest asked Him, and saith unto Him, Art Thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed? And Jesus said, I am.")

JESUS AND His disciples were on their way from Bethany, at the mount of Olives, to Jerusalem. Jesus told two of the disciples to go into a nearby village where they would find a colt, an ass, which had never before been ridden, tied. They were to loose and bring him to Jesus. If anyone asked them why they did it they were to say, simply, "The Lord hath need of him."

The men did this, and brought the colt to Jesus. They put their own garment on the colt for Jesus to ride on, and many in the multitude which had gathered about them, spread their garments in the way and some cut down branches from the trees and strewed them in the way. . . . They went before Him and after Him, crying, "Hosanna; Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord: Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord: Hosanna in the highest."

This was Jesus' triumph. The donkey, or ass, was used much more by the common people than was the horse, which was mostly used in battle. These asses were used as beasts of burden, for work in the fields or mills and for riding.

Jesus Goes to Temple

Riding so, with those who loved and admired Him about Him, Jesus came to the temple, and looked about, and when evening had come He again went to Bethany, to the home of Mary, Martha and Lazarus, whom He had recently raised from the dead. Next morning they started again for Jerusalem, without having had breakfast. Seeing a fig tree with leaves on it, Jesus went to it, hoping there would be some figs, but He found there were none. Jesus said to the tree, "No man eat fruit of thee hereafter for ever."

And the tree withered away. Jesus saw an opportunity to teach a lesson with this tree, warning unfaithful Israel that it would bring a curse down upon itself.

When they came to the temple, Jesus threw the money changers out for the second time, saying, "Is it not written, My house shall be called of all nations the house of prayer? but ye have made it a den of thieves." Hearing this the scribes and Pharisees sought to destroy Him for interfering with what they felt was their business.

Jesus' saying about prayer should be remembered. "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them." But He added, when you pray and remember that you have a quarrel with anyone, go to that person and make up with them, forgive them, so that your Father in heaven may forgive you your sins.

Enemies Try to Trap Jesus

Trying to trap Jesus, as usual, the scribes and Pharisees asked Him where He got His authority to do the things He did. He countered with a question to them: Is the baptism of John from heaven or of men? He had them there. If they said of heaven, He could say, Why did ye not believe him? If they said of earth, they were afraid of the people who looked on John as a prophet. So they didn't answer. Jesus then refused to answer their question.

Jesus taught the people by a parable. He said a certain man planted a vineyard, built all the necessary equipment and rented it to some men to share the profits. When he sent a messenger to get his share of the returns they beat the man; another they wounded severely; another they killed; and when at last he sent his only son, they killed him. Of course the man killed these wicked men so they lost all.

Jesus, of course, was the Son who was killed by the wicked husbandmen, and Israel was the loser by not accepting Him when He was sent to save them.

Again the priests sought to catch Jesus by asking if it was lawful for Jews to pay tribute to Caesar. Jesus asked for a coin, and when Caesar's image was found on it, He said, "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." They used the coin for bargaining, selling, for protection under Caesar, so why should they not pay tribute to Caesar?

We will skip the silly question asked by the Sadducees, about the seven brothers who successively married the same woman as each died, the question being who would claim her in heaven. Jesus said there is no marriage in heaven.

Not all the scribes were the hypocrites that Jesus called them. When Jesus was asked what was the first commandment, and He answered to love God, and the second was to love thy neighbor, a scribe agreed with Him, and Jesus said to him, "Thou art not far from the kingdom of God."

Sitting near the treasury where gift offerings were dropped for the temple, Jesus watched rich men put in large sums, but at no sacrifice. A poor widow dropped two "mites," which make a farthing—a fourth of a penny. Jesus declared that she had given more than any other, because of her poverty she had given all she had. Hers was a real sacrifice to the Lord.

FLIERS DROP GIFTS
MELBOURNE — A strange friendship has developed between natives on a lonely South Pacific island and U. S. Navy patrol fliers. Gifts were dropped near a village by the airmen and soon the natives appeared every time the planes went over. Then they began writing notes on the beach with bits of rock and wood. One message said: "The great thank to our friend thanks you we will help you when we pray for you helps very much to us." How the natives acquired their meager English is not known, but the fliers believe a missionary may have served among them at some time.

Newark Looking Like Championship Timber As Tournament Nears

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles dealing with the prospects of teams figured to play a key part in the forthcoming state basketball tournament. Today's article centers on the Newark club which is the defending Class A champion. Others, which will follow, deal with Martins Ferry, Canton, Findlay, and, to mention a few.

By Loren W. Tibbals
NEWARK, Feb. 25—Inch by inch Newark's power-laden Wildcats are moving closer to another Ohio Class A high school basketball championship and if the current Wild ones win out this year it will be their fourth state championship in nine years.

The recital of Newark's advancement to a top place among Ohio's scholastic cage leaders is a story in itself. But we'll try to be brief before hashing over current prospects.

The whole business of winning championships started for Newark way back in 1936 when Clarence "Red" Orr astounded the entire state by leading his Licking county team to a state crown after dropping 10 games during the regular season. You would think a team that lost 10 games couldn't win any sort of title—little lone the state championship. But somehow how or another Newark accomplished the seemingly impossible.

Another Then
In 1938 Orr gave Newark another state title after winning the Central district championship in 1937. And then, in comparison with the lush 1936-'38 seasons, followed four years of dismal campaigning.

At the start of the 1942-'43 season Orr was commissioned in the Coast Guard and with him, so the book says, went Newark's basketball hopes. He was replaced by Max Douglas, who up to then was Orr's supply line as a Newark junior high school coach. Max took over and in record time whipped together a team which eventually swallowed up everything in sight—including another state championship.

Just everybody in the sports business—coaches, writers and fans alike—were agreed that the 1943 Wildcats were about as good a team as could be found in the high school ranks anywhere. There wasn't a national high school tourney last year and so they didn't get an opportunity to show their stuff outside of the Buckeye realm. Maybe it was a good thing—for other state champs at least.

But this year Douglas came up with another world beater and the present 'Cats are considered the equal, or by some—superior, to their predecessors. This, of course, will not be decided one way or another until Newark has been bounced from the tournament ranks or wins out again. And maybe not even then.

At any rate Newark is expected to be on the firing line when the cream of the schoolboy fives converge on Columbus March 25 to settle the 1944 crown.

On the basis of their pre-tournament showing, Newark is one of the favorites for the big trip to Columbus. This is the consensus of most fans because competition is expected to be considerably below last year's standards in both the Central district and the southwestern quarter of the state—and, too, because the Wildcats are as tough a band, possibly tougher, than a year ago.

The current Newark edition is built around Paul Jackson, a 17-year-old senior whose 234 points have been one of the big factors in the team's 19-game win streak. Jackson, a guard, is a holdover from last year's team along with Forwards Bob Gorsuch and Vernon Williams, Center Ken Campbell and Guard Bill Blinn.

DODGERS TO DON SATIN TO PLAY NIGHT CONTESTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—Whoops! The Brooklyn Dodgers are going in for satins—white and baby blue shades—but strictly for evening wear.

The Bums are going to be dressed up by their president, Branch Rickey, who announced that the white satins suits, designed to dazzle the Dodgers' opponents and enthrall the fans, will be worn at home games. Uniforms of a delicate shade of baby blue will be donned on the road.

The material, the same as that used for football pants, is durable, said Rickey. "The point, however," said Rickey, "is that these uniforms will be colorful under lights."

TURBYS ENTER
CHICAGO, Feb. 25—The Sheboygan Redskins, National league runner-up, and the Columbus, O., Turbys were entered to compete in the sixth annual world championship basketball tournament in the Chicago stadium March 20 to 25. Teams already given berths are the Fort Wayne Zollners, National league champions; Camp Campbell, Ky.; Indianapolis Pure Oilers, and the Pittsburgh, Pa., Sheriffs.

HE STOLE THE SHOW
ONTARIO, Cal.—A carnival sideshow went out of business here after a spectator stole the show's star performer—a four-legged rooster valued at $250.

BIG GAMES ON CARD TONIGHT

Tigers End Pre-Tourney Play; Semi-Finals Of County Meet Staged

Basketball in big proportions will be handed out to Circleville and Pickaway county court fans Friday night, Circleville's high Tigers closing their regular pre-tourney season against London and semi-finals of the county tournament, being staged at Jackson township school.

Circleville will be out after its second victory over the London lads, a victory being knocked off earlier in the season on the Madison county court.

The Tigers are hoping to break the lethargy in which they have been since they thumped Wilmington 57-44. The Red and Black outfit has not been "on" since that time.

London has a good team, one that is reputed to be hard-driving and capable.

Reserve teams of the two schools will pry off the lid at 7:15.

Out at Jackson school, it's Perry against Walnut in the first game, and Ashville against Pickaway in the second one.

Winners will meet Saturday night, with the losers playing for the third place position.

Tourney fans are favoring Perry and Ashville to meet in the finals, but Pickaway county tournaments usually end just the opposite from what is expected of them.

It was a foregone conclusion that the Jackson school hall would be filled long before the hour for the first game arrived.

WHITE SOX ACE NOW IN 4-F PUTS NAME ON PAPER

CHICAGO, Feb. 25—The Chicago White Sox management, frequently subjected to holdout troubles, had the name of Orval Grove, pitching star, on a contract today.

The No. 1 Sox hurler's 1944 pay was not revealed, but it was speculated that he probably received the biggest boost of any member on the club and perhaps the largest in baseball.

GAIL ROBBINS GUEST

Lovely Songstress Gail Robbins will be the special guest of the Bob Crosby-Les Tremayne combination Sunday. The duo, with antics and band, "Cut-up touches" over NBC at 9:30 p. m. from the training base of the U. S. Marines at El Toro, Calif.
Gail Robbins formerly sang with Hal Kemp's orchestra, Art Jarrett's, Ben Bernie's bands in Chicago. She is currently working in a lead role in "I Married a Soldier" which is her first movie.
The music opener is "Shoo Shoo Baby" which will be followed by the orchestra playing "Dark Town Strutters Ball." Bob Crosby will sing "Talk of the Town" with the Pied Pipers and the Pipers will do a specialty number "If I Could Be With You." The famous Crosby-Tremayne slide song is "Life is Just a Bowl of Cherries."

ALDRICH FAMILY

Headed by "The Aldrich Family", appearing en masse, the Radio Hall of Fame Sunday, February 27, 5 to 6 p. m., over the Blue network, will present one of the most sparkling programs since its inception on the air.
Phil Baker, witty emcee of "Take It Or Leave It", the quiz show that plays to SRO audiences each week, will be on hand to lend a note of comedy and Dean Murphy, one of the more famous of the impersonators, will be present to give the program a novelty twist. Paul Whiteman's orchestra will play "I Want to Be Happy" and "I Love You" from the current Broadway hit, "Mexican Hayride". Whiteman will also present his own arrangement of a Cole Porter medley. Deems Taylor will emcee the 60-minute program.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

David Rochette, Canadian bass baritone, who, with Leopold Simo-neau, tenor, also of Montreal, will be featured on the "Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air" Sunday over the Blue network, is a singer literally by accident. Rochette is one of a family of fourteen, all musicians, and began his musical career as a trumpet player in the family orchestra. He would have no doubt continued as such had he not met with an accident which cost him two front teeth and ended his trumpet-toting days forever. Turning to singing, he has made such a success of it that today he is ready to compete for a Metropolitan Opera contract.

Sales Corps of 150 Ready To Start Red Cross Fund Drive

COUNTY QUOTA ESTABLISHED AT RECORD HIGH

Field Worker Speaks At Kick Off Meeting Of Local Leaders

IMPORTANCE STRESSED

School Children Urged To Assist In Assuring Success Of Campaign

More than 150 Circleville and Pickaway county persons, all pledged to put forth an all-out effort, are ready today to start the Pickaway county Red Cross War Fund campaign drive next Wednesday. The goal assigned the county is $24,300, much larger than any previous goal set in the last 20 years.

Last year the county raised $16,800 for the National Red Cross War Fund.

A kick-off meeting was conducted Thursday afternoon in Red Cross headquarters with Harry Humiston, Red Cross field worker who has seen services in various army camps, as the speaker.

Mr. Humiston, who had appeared at the Rotary club meeting earlier in the day, related the work being done by Red Cross throughout the world, informing the Red Cross campaign workers that wherever boys are serving the Red Cross is carrying on its work.

Important Job

The speaker pointed to the importance of the job being done by Red Cross, serving as liaison between the soldier or sailor and his family in time of stress or emergency.

How badly the money being sought in the National War Fund drive is needed, and how vital it is that the county go over its quota was pointed out by the field representative.

Mr. Humiston has been assigned here to help get the campaign rolling. After speaking at Rotary and at the Red Cross meeting Thursday, he has set up a schedule for a tour through the county, including addresses in Ashville, Saltercreek, Pickaway township and Circleville high schools. The story of the War Fund drive and the need for financial support to keep up the work of the organization was to be told in each school.

Children To Aid

Much of the success of the campaign depends on support received from school youngsters in promoting the Red Cross drive in their homes.

Harley Colwell and Barton Deming, co-chairmen of the Red Cross campaign, have almost completed their organization work, several townships still not being organized completely.

However, persons attending the Thursday meeting represented many parts of the county and of the city.

Township chairmen named to date include: Scioto, Mrs. S. E. Beers; Harrison, Mrs. Roy Teegardin; Washington, Marvin Steeley; Jackson, Wayne Hoover; Walnut, Mrs. J. B. Cromley; Madison, Mrs. Martha Warner; Monroe, Mrs. Marie Walters; Perry, Mrs. Herbert Louis and Mrs. Roscoe Shipley; Ashville, the Rev. H. D. Fudge.

Townships in which organizations have not been completed include Pickaway, Wayne, Darby, Muhlenberg and Deer Creek, although directors of the campaign have about completed their appointments in all of them.

In some areas, the Red Cross War Fund drive gets under way Monday, February 28, but the Pickaway county chapter has worked out its program so that solicitation will get under way on March 1.

DEPUTIES' CORPS REELECTS ALL LOCAL LEADERS

James Stout, East Franklin street, was reelected captain of the Pickaway County Sheriff's Auxiliary Deputies' corps Thursday evening when the corps met in the Betz restaurant. Mr. Stout has served as head of the unit since its organization.

Other officers named included: Budd F. Harden, first lieutenant; Harry Brown, second lieutenant; John Dunlap, Jr., third lieutenant; and Fred Wittich, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Harden had been serving also as treasurer, but this post was transferred to the secretary.

About 35 men attended the meeting, which was termed highly successful.

The newly-organized Pickaway county Youth Canteen was promised support of the corps in any way possible. While the corps is without funds except to carry on its usual activities, it pledged assistance to the Youth Canteen movement.

Rotary Club Observes 22nd Anniversary By Tribute To Founders

Rotary club observed its twenty-second anniversary at its meeting Thursday at Pickaway Arms with nine of the original charter members present. Included were R. L. Brehmer, Paul Johnson, Karl Herrmann, Fred Clark, Harley Colwell, Tom Gilliland, C. R. Barnhart, Charles T. Gilmore, John Ryan and Clark Will. Mr. Herrmann led the singing for the day.

Dr. G. D. Phillips, club president, handed the gavel to Tom Gilliland, who presided.

The nine charter members were given signal honors by the club, being seated at a private table and also hearing numerous complimentary remarks directed their way.

A large birthday cake was served, many oldtime songs were sung, and a good time was enjoyed by the club and its visitors, among whom were seven Chillicothe Rotarians, including Charles Evans, the district governor, who spoke briefly. Martin Chandler, also of the Chillicothe club, who helped organize the local club, was among those present.

A contest was conducted in which the nine charter members were opposed to nine recently admitted members, the younger members winning the competition.

Dr. Phillips informed the club that Rotarians are planning to conduct a campaign to have all houses numbered and all street signs posted in the city.

Next week's speaker will be Sir Francis Malzar, an Englishman.

Nolan Murphy and Wilbur Griffith, former Pickaway county teachers, are the official scorekeepers for the Franklin county tournament being held at Westerville, Ohio. It would seem that Franklin county teams have an advantage over other district teams by holding their county tournament on the same floor as the district.

Don Nance and C. D. Eversole attended the Fairfield county tournament at Lancaster Thursday evening.

"Sonny" Shauk, son of Supt. and Mrs. Robert Shauk, is confined to his home with measles.

Sergeant Art Beatty, brother of Mrs. Lawrence Fullen, expects to arrive home on 15-day furlough from Kelley Field, Texas sometime Friday evening.

"Doc" Noggle, who is a prisoner of war in a German camp, writes that he has not been receiving any mail or packages from home folk. Numerous packages have been mailed to him, but, for some reason, do not reach his camp. His parents have received some half dozen letters from him during the last year; the latest, written in October, was received about three months later.

Maurice Graham, who is stationed at Camp Lee, Virginia, has been promoted to the rank of Sergeant. He is being visited this week by his mother.

The February meeting of the Ashville P. T. A. was well attended. The P. T. A. Honor Roll with 166 names of Ashville girls and boys in the service was presented to the school. An excellent program followed the business meeting.

The program consisted of several selections by the school orchestra under the direction of Fred E. Brobst; vocal solo—Dorothy Peters; reading—Doris Neal; instrumental trio—Luther Knox, Du Wayne Shook, and Harold Pardee; and two patriotic films. The program was in charge of Mrs. Josephine Bowers.

Guess we will have to change the old saying "Join the Navy and see the world" to "Join the Department of Education if you want to travel." Harold J. Bowers, state director of certification will be in Tiffin, Friday; Fremont, Saturday, Chicago, Illinois on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday; back to Columbus for a day, and then to Ironton, Thursday. Mr. Bowers will give several addresses during his "tour". In between speeches and his regular duties, Harold is assisting local people with those tricky income tax blanks.
